A Useful Root
Magic $250
Far Off China
Uneven Prosperity

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, becoming less important and less accurate after 70, declares that accumulated money is the root of all evil.

Without accumulated money Niagara Falls wouldn't be harnessed, the Panama canal, which helps Britain as much as it does us, wouldn't be dug; automobile production wouldn't be on a quantity basis and this country would have, perhaps, 240,000 expensive automobiles, instead of 24,000,000 inexpensive automobiles.

Great accumulations of capital, like great accumulation of water going down hill, represent power.

Eliminate accumulated capital and you would eliminate possibilities of higher civilization.

If the people haven't brains enough to watch and control accumulated capital they wouldn't have enough to control small capital.

There is a magic in the five words, "Two hundred and fifty dollars." A college professor, hired to deliver lectures praising the power companies, testifies that he got $250 for each lecture.

And a lawyer of the earnest Ku Klux Klan hears that a distinguished United States senator got $250 for each lecture attacking individuals distasteful to the Klan.

Tuan Chi-Lin is nearing Peking. Did you ever hear of him?

Marshal Chang Tso-Lin gives up hope before the advancing Japanese and other complications, and prepares to abandon Peking, once China's mighty capital.

Is Chang Tso-Lin a definite person in your mind?

In May various corporations declared dividends amounting to $247,900,405. And June's dividends will total $500,000,000. The country is prosperous. The task of intelligent men is to divide the prosperity more evenly.

Mr. Durant, who once owned control of General Motors, but doesn't now, returns from Europe, saying: "The biggest bull market ever seen will develop in two or three months. The big boom is yet to come."

Mr. Durant thinks brokers' loans will amount to ten billions.

Honolulu, June 2—We had everything ready pretty well 24 hours before hand as our usual policy is to be up-to-date. We started warming the motors up at 8:15 Thursday morning and took off at 8:45 or a minute or two either way.

The ship started to move forward all right and we got about 600 feet down the runway and the center motor quit, so I shut off the switch on the remaining two motors and investigated. It was only a very trifling thing, however, and we immediately got off.

Mrs. Britten had been entertaining guests and offered to take them home in her car. Asking the guests to "keep an eye on the baby," Mrs. Britten went to the garage to get the car. But the baby slipped out unnoticed and was in the path of the machine when the mother backed out.

Jack and Gene Bout "All the Bunk," Says Rickard

New York, June 2 (AP)—Talk of a third Dempsey-Tunney fight (in September or at any other time is "all bunk," Tex Rickard said today. "There is absolutely nothing to it," the promoter said, "and I will be willing to wager $50,000 to back up that statement. Dempsey does not intend to fight again and, even if he did, Tunney would not meet him this year. The champion will have only one fight and that will be against Tom Heeney."

Instead of fighting a second time in September, Tunney has virtually completed plans to start that month on a world tour.

Dempsey's stage contract, it is understood, would keep the old mauled from attempting a fistic come-back anyway. Under it he starts rehearsals in July, with the actual production to go on in August.

DEATH CAR DRIVER TELLS OF SHOOTING

The brutally murdered girl whose bullet-riddled body was found in a sandpit in Milton, was identified today as Mary Mahan, 21, of C st., South Boston, a cabaret singer, and police are tracking John Tartar, 27, her suitor, as a result of a story told by a taxi-driver who heard the shooting.

Tartar's revolver, believed by the authorities to be the death weapon, is in the hands of the police.

The taxi-driver, John O'Brien, is held as a material witness as is Nicholas Tartar, brother of John. Nicholas Tartar is part owner of the taxi concern for which O'Brien drives and for which John Tartar formerly worked.

Insane jealousy is the theory advanced for the crime by brothers of the slain girl, who declare that she was in abject fear of Tartar, had once taken a gun away from him and had gone riding with him yesterday only after persistent urging on his part.

"I drove John Tartar and Mary Mahan to Milton yesterday afternoon," said O'Brien, the taxicab operator, according to police who questioned him after inspecting his cab and finding

DRIVER PINS GIRL MURDER ON HER HUNTED SUITOR

'He Had a Gun in His Hands'

"I was driving Tartar and we picked up the girl at her home on C st. shortly after 1 o'clock. A friend of Miss Mahan's went along, but just to the corner where she took a street car.

"I drove out Randolph ave. to the Blue Hill reservation, into Hillside ave. and through a lane which Tartar pointed out.

"There the two got out of the car. Tartar said, 'Take a walk, John,' and I did so.

"I was about 200 feet up the road when I heard two shots. I started back and then heard a series of shots.

"In another moment my cab came toward me with Tartar at the wheel. He told me to get in and drive. He had a gun in his hand.

"At his direction I drove to an address on North Main st., Randolph, and left him at the home of a relative of his.

Murder Gun Held by Police

"Tartar said to me, 'Here, John, take this gun to that fruit store in the South End. You know the place.'

"I did so and went back to work, keeping quiet about it till now. The last I saw of him was at 3:30 yesterday afternoon in Randolph."

Nicholas Tartar, questioned, said he had not seen his brother for four days, but had heard that he was hanging around the circus. He said he had not seen Mary Mahan for nearly a year, and last heard that she was in New York.

Asst. Dist. Atty. William P. Kelley of Norfolk County, in which Milton is situated, and Chief Inspector Anslee C. Armstrong of the Boston department, handled the questioning of the two, and came jointly to the decision to hold them as witnesses.

Tartar accidentally exposed a revolver in his pocket before leaving the Mahan home in South Boston for the ride, according to the girl's mother, Mrs. Margaret Mahan.

The brown stain found on O'Brien's cab was cut out of the rubber mat for analysis.

All the cabs of the company in question were ordered to police headquarters by Deputy Superintendent Goode and inspected for bullet holes or other telltale evidences of crime.

Bullet Fixes Scene of Crime

O'Brien's cab was found to have been recently washed, but the suspicious stain remained. Superintendent Michael H. Crowley took a hand in the interrogating of O'Brien that immediately followed.

The finding of a bullet today in a blood-stained clump of grass, bordering the sandpit in Milton, definitely fixed the exact scene of the killing, police said.

Police are investigating a report that a Harvard or Tech student was offered a taxicab for sale last night by a man who said he was willing to "let it go for almost nothing."

A woman living in Canton ave., Milton, notified metropolitan police by telephone today that her husband saw a taxi with the driver the only occupant speeding toward Mattapan yesterday afternoon, shortly after the time fixed for the crime.

She said her husband would give the information in person when he finished work today and police believe that through him they may establish independently the identity of the cab and its chauffeur.

Positive identification of the victim was made by the father and brothers at the morgue in Quincy, after they had gone to Boston police headquarters and reported that from descriptions of tattoo marks and teeth they were certain the slain girl was their daughter and sister.

Help Police Weave Chain of Clues

All three broke down and wept after viewing the body, and the brothers spoke in bitter terms of the suitor they suspected.

By questioning members of the family and others, the authorities pieced together events preceding the murder.

Tartar, whose taxidriver's license was revoked a few months ago, according to the police, called at the Mahan house and after conversation with her and her mother, invited Mary out to have something to eat.

Although she was not eager to go, she consented and invited Mrs. Mary Connolly Ross, formerly of South Boston and now a resident of New York City, who was visiting relatives over Memorial Day, to accompany them.

Mrs. Ross went with them as far as Silver and C sts., where she left to take a car to Boston, and Tartar and Mary rode off in the cab, driven by an unidentified chauffeur.

On Dorchester ave., they passed the taxi stand of Mary's brother, Edwin, who waved to them and received a wave in return.

That was the last seen of Mary Mahan by her family or friends until today, when she was viewed in death by her relatives.

Further questioning by police elicited the information that Mary returned home Memorial Day evening, after having dined with Tartar at the Ritz Hotel, Columbus ave., and awakened her mother to show her a revolver which she said she had taken away from Tartar because of his condition from drinking.

She Feared Suitor's Fiery Temper

Her father was then awakened and he emptied the gun of its bullets and threw them away. The following day, police say, Tartar called at the house and demanded the gun and after heated argument it was given to him.

Because Mary Mahan and Mrs. Ross swapped coats just before they left the Mahan house yesterday afternoon, police at first believed that the victim was Mrs. Ross, judging from cards found in the pockets of the slain girl's coat.

The initials "J. T.," tattooed on the victim's thigh, together with a butterfly tattooed on the other leg, helped in establishing the correct identification.

The initials are those of John Tartar, who in pugilistic circles was known as "Buddy Moran," according to the police.

As Mary left home yesterday she said to her mother, according to Mrs. Ross, "Mother, I'll be back in a couple of hours."

"Well, about what time?" her mother asked, and she replied, "Four o'clock." "Well, I'll be waiting for you," her mother replied.

She did not return, but when her mother heard the first descriptions sent out by police of the murdered girl she became convinced it was her daughter. Her sons tried to console her, but they knew in their own hearts, according to what they said today, that it was their sister.

She Fled From Suitor

Besides Thomas Mahan, who lives on Supple st., Roxbury, and Edwin, who lives at home, there are three others in the Mahan family, Agnes, 17; Rita, 9, and Gerard, 12.

The murder, staged at the edge of a sandpit off Hillside rd., Milton, appeared more in the nature of an execution than a crime of passion.

The girl's body and her posture of feeble defense, conjure up a picture of horror. Her executioner sent his first bullet into her abdomen, and it would have been enough alone to do the work of death. Then she evidently turned, possibly in the attempts to seek safety in flight. But the wielder of the revolver was not to be denied. He sent four more bullets into the girl's body. Two of them pierced her back just below the left armpit, the other two finding lodgment lower and nearer the heart.

TWO SHOTS HEARD

The victim was a particularly attractive young woman. She was 5 ft. 3 in. in height, and weighed about 120 pounds. She had blue eyes and light brown hair, which had evidently been bleached to a nearer blonde hue.

She wore black shoes, a light-weight, light colored brown coat, a two-piece black velvet suit, and flesh-colored stockings.

On the victim's left leg above the knee was a tattooed butterfly, exceptionally well done. On the right thigh were tattooed the initials "J. T."

In the right shoe a $1 bill was carefully folded beneath her stocking, given Mary Mahan by her mother when she left home yesterday.

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, who is acquainted with the Mahan family, visited them today to offer his condolence and any aid he could render. He was informed of all the circumstances, and one member of the family accompanied him to his office at the courthouse.

The dead girl sought refuge recently for several days at the home of an aunt, Mrs. Margaret Sheehan, on C st., due to her dislike for her persistent suitor, who was not only pestering her with calls, but was also following her in the street, according to members of her family.

Police Inspector Harry Pierce questioned the girl's family closely in order to gather all possible clues, while Inspectors James Driscoll and Frank Mullin were assigned by Chief Inspector Armstrong to find Tartar.

Two persons at least heard the shots that meant death for the South Boston girl. Herbert Bosworth, who lives within 200 yards of the scene of the murder, heard the shots just as he was leaving his home. He thought nothing of it, for he knew that the police were engaged in target practice.

His daughter, Margaret, however, 13, heard the shots and gave herself no such practical explanation of them. She was terrified, she told the police, and went to her bedroom and locked herself in. She heard three shots, she said, then a man's voice raised in altercation, three more shots and then the sound of a motor leaving the place.

TRINKET AMONG CLUES POLICE HOLD IN TAXICAB MURDER

This powder compact in the form of a locket was found among the effects of Mary Mahan, murdered South Boston cabaret singer. The photo it contained is of John Tartar, who accompanied her to the woods and then fled after she had been slain, a taxicab driver told police today. This man says he drove Tartar from the scene of the crime. Mary Mahan sometimes used the nickname of Ruth, her brother, Edwin, explained.

FIND GIRL DEAD IN SEWER IN CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge police today were attempting to solve a mystery following discovery of the body of a pretty young woman in the main sewer under Memorial drive and Endicott st., that city.

The body is that of a girl only 4 feet, 10 inches tall, wearing a reddish brown dress and coat, white lingerie, blue knickers, flesh colored stockings, and brown cut leather shoes. She was 25 to 26 years old, with brown bobbed hair. No hat was found.

A gold wrist watch of an expensive make, worn on the left wrist, had stopped at 10:20.

According to the police, she must have been dropped through a manhole on Endicott st., to be swept down the sewer and through the automatic gate, where the body was found.

Following a superficial examination, Medical Examiner Dow said the body had been in the water 8 or 10 hours, but he refused to say whether in his opinion foul play had been committed. He said there were no visible marks of violence. Then he went into conference with police officials.

The body was found by Timothy McCarthy, Amory st., and Timothy McNamara, Sixth st., employed in the sewer divisor of the Cambridge street department. They notified Chief of Police McBride, who with Sergt. John R. King of the Traffic department, was in the vicinity inspecting traffic conditions. The body was taken to Litchfield's Morgue on Massachusetts ave. and at a late hour had not been identified.

MOTHER WAITS ALL NIGHT FOR SLAIN GIRL

By FRANCES L. BAIRD

Haunted through the long night by a persistent fear, yet comforted by the thought of the dollar bill which she had given her pretty young daughter, "in case she needed it in emergency," Mrs. Mary Mahan faced today's dawn which brought the news of that daughter's murder via the morning newspapers.

"Oh, my Mary was a good girl," the gray-haired mother sobbed, as she paced the floor of their humble home in C st., South Boston. "All night I waited for her step on the stair. All night I prayed for her safe return, for I knew John Tartar had persuaded her to go riding with him against her will. It was a comfort to know that she carried car fare tucked in the heel of her shoe always, but why should my pretty girl be killed like this?"

Edwin Mahan (brother) Joseph Mahan (father)

The mother's grief was pitiful to see as she fully realized the tragedy that had overtaken Mary, the daughter who was her pride because she had a sweet voice and a cheery disposition. The girl had sung in cabarets.

"She must have had a premonition of her fate," she said. "She did not want to go riding when Tartar asked her, but she finally consented and they left here shortly after noon. If she feared him she did not tell me. And to think that is the last time I saw her alive. Oh, I can't talk—it can't be true."

The dead girl had known the taxi driver with whom she went on that last ride for five years but had often tried to "shake him," according to her sister, who vainly sought to comfort her hysterical mother when identification of the murder victim became certain.

"It was the dollar bill they found in her shoe that first made me think it might be Mary. I was still waiting for Mary to come home when I heard the newsboys crying murder in the streets—MURDER—OH GOD —to think it had to be my little girl."

GIRL SLAIN IN SANDPIT, HER HOME AND DEATH SPOT

BOSTON AMERICAN
BOSTON, SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1928

Mary Mahan as she liked best to appear is shown in this studio portrait of her. She rode to a tryst with death in the woods. Her bullet-riddled body was found in a gravel pit, from where her slayer had fled.

Officer Daniel Cronin and Officer Thomas Griffin at the sand pit in Milton inspecting the spot where the body of Mary Mahan was found. The body lay only a few feet from a roadway which is traversed by hundreds of motorists.

The arrow points to the third-floor home of Mary Mahan at 88 C st., South Boston. It was here that she bid her mother goodbye and then drove away to her death in the Blue Hills.

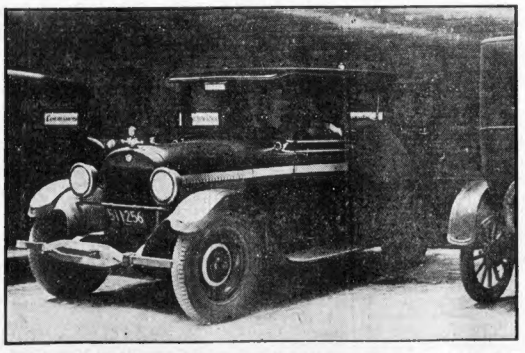
Harold A. Rubin, a Dorchester druggist, who found the body of Mary C. Mahan in sandpit.

Mrs. Mary Connolly Ross of New York, chum of slain girl, who was visiting in Boston, was invited to go on the fatal ride, but rode only to Silver st. and then took a trolley car to Boston.



Inspector Lewis H. Neiberger of Boston at headquarters inspecting the taxicab in which John O'Brien, a taxi driver, says he drove John Tartar and Mary Mahan to Milton. O'Brien says he heard the shooting when the girl was slain in the sandpit and then drove Tartar to Randolph, bringing the gun to Boston at Tartar's request.

Chief Travers of the Milton police lost no time in starting hunt for evidence to solve the mystery.

Chief Inspector Armstrong of the Boston police, in charge of the investigation of the sandpit murder, conferring with Thomas Mahan, brother of slain girl, who established her identity at the morgue in Quincy.

POWER 'TRUST' FIGHTS PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Activities of power utilities were credited with having retarded municipal ownership of utilities all over the country in a letter introduced today in the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of utilities publicity methods.

It was presented while George E. Lewis, executive manager of the Rocky Mountain public utilities information committee, was testifying.

The communication, addressed to K. W. Kissick, manager of the Deming Ice & Electric Company, Deming, New Mexico, said:

"Had the utility industry not started its public relations work when it did; had it not inaugurated systematic newspaper advertising, education activities in the high schools, colleges, universities and grade schools; had not undertaken widespread speaking activities—in short, had it not done the things that it has done within the past three years, we'd all be in a hell of a shape today.

"We builded better than we knew when we started this work three years ago. Without this, I venture to say states, municipal and government ownership would have been 100 per cent of what it is today."

Among many documents entered as evidence today by Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, was a letter from Lewis to George F. Oxley director of publicity for the National Electric Light Association in New York in 1923, which said his committee was going "into the compilation of municipal ownership data on a large scale."

Circulation of a pamphlet on "the income warrant menace" was described by Lewis.

He defined "income warrants" as warrants issuede by cities not legally binding and used to encourage municipal ownership programms.

"By so calling them a menace you meant to discourage municipal ownership, did you not?" asked the commission counsel.

"Yes, we have been combatting municipal ownership," replied Lewis.

Later on, at the manor house on Waveney Farm, Reginald Bird gave his dinner to judges and special guests as a pleasant interlude between Millwood's two days.

MISS ALICE THORNDIKE RODE WITH MESSRS. SORTWELL and Appleton for Myopia in the hunts teams class. And the "Saltonstalls" for Dedham were Messrs. Richard and Leverett of that family and George Lewis, Jr., who belongs thereto by way of marriage, as spouse of the former Miss Muriel Saltonstall. Miss Betty Bird and Mrs. Gardiner Fiske were in a Millwood team. Little Miss Jeanne Daniels of Worcester is a curly-haired girl owning a smart hunt team. Alvin Sortwell's small daughter, Miss Anna, is true to family procivities. She rides superbly, a natural horsewoman, and appeared in several classes.

FRAGRANT WITH A WEALTH OF SPRING BLOSSOMS WAS Groton School Chapel today; blossoms brought over from Hawthorn Hill in Lancaster, Mrs. Bayard Thayer's beautiful country estate. The second Thayer daughter to wed, Miss Ruth followed Mrs. William Dexter's example with a country wedding, and perhaps sets a mode for Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer when she becomes Mrs. Richard Storey, Jr. Groton Chapel is beautifully classic in the English Gothic manner, and Boston's most ultra conservatives occupied chairs within its ecclesiastical enclosure.

LABURNUMS AND TULIPS WILL BE BLOOMING IN FULL spring radiance when, on June 11, Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster opens her Chestnut Hill gardens to benefit the Boston Habit Clinic. Pink-petaled fruit trees will contribute beauty and fragrance to the day and scene, for they, too, will then be gloriously abloom. Mrs. Webster, ever generous with her lovely gardens when charity is the recipient, is having her corps of gardeners guard every opening blossom with tenderest care until June 11 arrives.

EVERYONE KNOWS THE WEBSTER PLACE IN HAMMOND st., Chestnut Hill, and tickets for the Garden Day may be purchased at the entrance. Or Mrs. John P. Marquard, at No. 43 west Cedar st., here in town, will gladly take care of purchasers prior to June 11. She and Mesdames James Jackson Minot, Morton Prince, Robert E. Peabody, Samuel Eliot, Ralph Bradley, Murray Forbes, Leslie Hastings and Harland Powell are assisting Mrs. Lyneham Crocker in arranging details.

LAST CALL FOR BOXES AT THE COUNTRY CLUB RACES! E. Nason Hamlin, custodian of these choice locations in the big stand, announces that a scant half dosen now remain unclaimed, these to be had by applying to him. Boston certainly is on the qui vive for its big Race Meet. More people than ever before, more horses, many more distinguished horsemen, and an enthusiasm ever mounting are factors that bring the sparkle to eyes of Eastern Horse Club members. June 16 and June 18 will be memorable days in sporting annals, so 'tis predicted.

TO SEE MISS CAROLINA THOM AND MAJOR ROBERT LE- grow Walsh married today in St. Matthew's Church, Mr. and Mrs. Henry St. John Smith and Mrs. William F. Wharton have journeyed down to Washington. Little Miss Nancy Smith is the flower girl, dainty in blue and pink tulle with poke bonnet and carrying a nosegay set in frilly white lace. The bride's bouffant tulle and lace gown combines sentiment and beauty in a lovely confection mistily bridelike. Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom of the Federal city are the bride's parents, and to their Washington establishment wedding guests go for the wedding breakfast after the ceremonial.

EVEN IN HIS MOST ASPIRING MOMENTS AS A LITTLE theater promoter, Leighton Rollins' dreams could not outrun their present realization. His "Try-Out" Theater in Wellesley is every bit the success he and his co-directors desire. Gifted young people with histrionic talents there may be without count. But young people gifted artistically, who possess keen business acumen and executive powers, may not be met with every day. The "Try-Out" staff is such a coterie. Some of them act, and all of them direct and certain ones are authors. Results are most satisfactory.

AUDIENCES KEENLY APPRECIATIVE FILL THE THEATER each evening. And afterward there is the pleasant custom of coffee. The all-seeing directorate combines with its theater a refectory, for dining before theater and taking coffee afterwards. The premiere of the theater and "The Rat Trap" found every place taken. Mrs. Dudley Ranney has entertained a large party one evening this week.

MRS. JOSEPH COURTNEY'S PARTY FOR THE OPENING included the Guy Warren Walkers, Jr., Mrs. Walker being the pretty dark-eyed young thing who was Miss Nancy Vose. Mrs. Courtney's gown was gleaming black, with pearls, to which a mink wrap lent added elegance. The F. Murray Forbeses have entertained at the "Try-Out." So has Mrs. George Wentworth. This afternoon comes the third weekly concert on the theater program, with Miss Helen Hunt the star attraction and all Wellesley out to hear her. Being in a college town, the "Try-Out" of course enjoys a college professor patronage most stimulating.

THAT FAST RIDING POLO SET ABOUT MYOPIA AND Princemere is to have a keen new antagonist this spring. It is not one brought over from England or recruited among "ten goal" men, but of local flavor. It is a case of the "Crimson" meeting the Myopia veterans and the famous Princemeres. The college varsity team moves almost en masse to the North Shore shortly. After they have today played their historic rivals of the Blue at New Haven, and later have dashed over to Rye for some matches.

THE NORTH SHORE DOTES ON ITS POLO. AND SOME very pretty spectacles it is treated to. When play is not going on at Myopia the enthusiastic motorist only needs dash through Grapevine rd. a mile or so and there, on the Princemere field in perfect sylvan setting, may be found this most thrilling of sports. Maj. John B. Wogan's energetic young men from Harvard are no mean antagonists. Not veterans of course. Far from it. But keen of eye and master of the reins, and alert to come through with the ball.

SECOND SHIP IN NOBILE HUNT

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 2 (AP)—Search for the dirigible Italia was given fresh impetus today with arrival of the steamship Braganza, which will carry Italian Alpinists to northern Spitzbergen for a survey of the region.

The Braganza will wait here for the sealer Hobby, due tomorrow with Lieut. Holm, Norwegian flier, and his hydroairplane.

Commander Romagna, captain of the base ship Citta Di Milano, conferred with the captain of the Braganza. The present plan is to put the Alpinists ashore on northern Spitzbergen with sledges and supplies for an extensive overland search.

When the Spitzbergen hunter, Paul Kremer, and the four Italians now out with him on skis have searched the terrain they will go to Advent bay to report their observations.

The steamer Ingefour, with Capt. Riiser-Larsen aboard, probably will start north next Thursday to assist Holm in the reconnaissance.

MISS MAUDE HUNNEWELL IS MARRIED IN LONDON

London, June 2—Miss Maude Hunnewell, of Boston, today became the bride of Ray Atherton, counsellor of the United States embassy here, in a ceremony at Holy Trinity Church, Brompton. Atherton is a former resident of Brookline, Mass., and his bride is the daughter of the late Hollis Hunnewell and Mrs. John S. Tooker of Boston. Diplomatic representatives of many nations attended a reception at the residence of Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton following the wedding.

JUGOSLAVIA MEETS ALL ITALY TERMS IN OUTRAGE

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, June 2 (AP)—Jugoslavia has acceded to all of Italy's demands for reparation for the recent acts of violence against Italian consulates and individuals in Jugoslavia. The government assured Premier Mussolini the strongest measures will be instituted to prevent further anti-Italian demonstrations.

Coolidge Autos Will Change Color on Brule Highway

Superior, Wis., June 2 (AP)—There are several surprises in store for President Coolidge when he arrives at the summer White House on the Brule river.

Nature and the topography of Wisconsin may conspire to demonstrate a few tricks by apparently giving his automobile chameleon-like properties. Some morning after a rain the President may leave the summer lodge for the executive office in a blue automobile and find upon his arrival that its color has been changed to red.

The gravel covering the roads when wet assumes a delicate pastel red shade. The auto tires splashing over the red clay swish a thin coating over the cars.

GIRL SAVES MAN FROM SUICIDE

A girl companion saved Charles Stearns, 75, of Hamilton rd., Brookline, from leaping into the Charles river after he had climbed the railing on Harvard bridge today, according to the police.

She grasped him and screamed, bringing Patrolman Albert H. McArdle to the scene. McArdle took both to the Back Bay police station, where Stearns is said to have told of domestic troubles.

The girl withheld her name, but gave police an address on Marlborough st., Back Bay.

FORD BUYS ANCIENT ENGINES FOR MUSEUM

Willimantic, Ct., June 2 (AP)—Henry Ford, through his agent, H. H. Taylor of Sudbury, Mass., has purchased for the Ford museum at Dearborn, Mich., two single-cylinder steam engines and an electric generator from the Holland Silk Company here. One engine is of the same type as that used by Thomas A. Edison in early experiments. There are very few o fthem left. The generator was installed in 1888.

WALL ST. BALKS AT HOOVER

New York, June 2 (A.P.)—The general sentiment in Wall st. is against the nomination of Herbert Hoover, Lewis F. Strauss, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., testified today before the Senate campaign investigating committee.

Strauss, a former secretary to Hoover, made this statement when asked if his firm had made any contribution to the Hoover-for-President fund. While his banking house gave no money, Strauss said he had raised around $30,000 for the commerce secretary's campaign.

He said Julius Rosenwald, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., contributed $10,000; Henry I. Mosee, a New York attorney, $2500, and V. E. Macy of New York $2000.

Tammany Has Not Given to Smith Fund

New York, June 2 (AP)—Tammany has made no contribution to the campaign fund of Governor Alfred E. Smith, George W. Olvany, a sachem of the Tammany Society, testified today before the Senate presidential campaign investigating committee.

Denying that Tammany is a political organization, Olvany said it was a patriotic society which has its headquarters in "a place called Tammany Hall."

"In the minds of the public Tammany is regarded as a political organization," said Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky.

"That's because the Democratic county committee of New York has made its headquarters in a building known as Tammany Hall, owned by the Tammany society," Olvany said. "It's there by sufferance only."

"The Tammany society has nothing to do with politics," Olvany declared. "It is a society which was organized 100 years and more ago by act of the state legislature. George Washington was a sachem of it. It took the side of the poor as against the rich."

Olvany said that John R. Voorhis was the grand sachem of Tammany. He added that there were a number of sachems, among whom is Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

COUNTRY-WIDE SEARCH FOR MISSING SERGEANT

Chief of Police John F. Milmore of Watertown today started a country-wide search for Sergt. George R. Sedric, on a leave of absence, whose wife has reported that he failed to join her and their three children in Seattle. On December 1 last Sergt. Searle, who formerly lived in Watertown, started on a six months' leave with the intention of joining his family. He said he might remain there. His wife wrote Chief Millmore she last heard from her husband December 28, when he sent her a postcard from Texas. His leave expired last night.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS END WORCESTER SESSION

Worcester, June 2 (AP)—With 1000 members in line, the annual parade of the grand council of New England of the United Commercial Travelers of America took place today as the concluding event of the 33d annual convention, which has been in session here since Wednesday. The parade was reviewed by Mayor O'Hara, Congressman George R. Stobbs, Harry Fields, 33, member of the Boston council; the city government and the women guests, who were bedecked for the occasion, wearing red and white hats.

BRITISH WARSHIPS WILL VISIT NEW ENGLAND PORTS

Washington, June 2 (AP)—British warships will visit a number of American ports this summer and fall. The British ambassador has informed government officials here that cruisers will visit two New England ports and several California cities and also visit the Panama Canal Zone.

All Rights Reserved!

STAGE AND SCREEN

Just Ask Him Another
In "Paris," at the Wilbur, Irene Bordoni tries desperately to stay the romance of her impecunious leading man with a wealthy but elderly lady. "Do you know," she feily inquires, "what it means to marry such a rich woman?" "Sure," he replies with wistful complacency, "pocket money."

WANING DRAMA SEASON GROWS OLD GRACEFULLY, COMEDY BEAMS ON LAST WEEKS

THESE JAPANESE GENTLEMEN you will see Monday at the Shubert have not come here to play tennis. In fact, and to be perfectly frank, neither are they Japanese, but William Williams and J. Humbird Duffey in "The Mikado" opera.

CAROLINE' FERRIDAY may be called a winsome lass in more than one sense, because in "Elmer the Great" at the Tremont she is very much bound up with winning ball games.

THE COLD SHOULDER is offered Marie Callahan by William Wayne in "Good News" at the Majestic. But the lady is much too warm-hearted to accept it. How many of us can say the same?

GARY FAY is one of a contented Copley cast now having fun with Norman Cannon's farce of misplaced confidence and displaced pronouns called "He Walked in Her Sleep."

JUST AN OLD-FASHIONED CUSTOM from the paleozoic age, used to denote the end of the third act. In "Paris" at the Wilbur, Arthur Margeston and Irene Bordoni struggle through this eight times a week.

BORDONI SETS NEW STYLE IN DRAMA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IN the natural course of human events, fashions change; new wrinkles, new ideas take the place of older modes. Any settled practice is almost sure to be toppled over by some philandering radical who sees hope for the future and economic salvation only in sudden changes. Not even so firmly an established science as the theater and its vari-colored product is immune from the ravages of fashion. It would be a luckless and uninteresting season which did not bring forth its regular epidemic of reform and novelty.

* * *

IN the world of the theater reform and revision usually are matters of economics, though not always so. During the season now wearing itself down to a survival of the fittest, Mr. Florenz Ziegfeld act up a new fashion in prodigious expenditure and got away with it so well that even his most persistent rivals were forced to admit that he was either the best showman or the greatest magician in the business. More modestly, Irene Bordoni is carving out a new type of drama—a spirited combination of comedy, farce and musical show, with jazz band trimmings.

* * *

IN "Paris" at the Wilbur Miss Bordoni coaxes you into many surprises. Incidentally she keeps your interest in the proceedings at boiling point. Few artists of our native drama are privileged to so completely capture an audience by ingenious methods; the toss of her head, the flip of a skirt. This flirtatious affair is called "musicomedy"; really it is musical comedy, farce comedy and a bit of good drama rolled into one happy evening. Pretentious revues have displayed no better dancing or more animated orchestration than that supplied by Irving Aaronson and "The Commanders"; saucy songs never have, and probably never will, find a more gifted exemplar than Miss Bordoni.

* * *

A NEW fashion in entertainment—such is "Paris." Its story is consistent; farce without a blush, without swinging doors and misbehaving husbands. Rippling fun skips merrily from curtain to curtain; amazing dances keep you staring in wonder, for it is indeed a new gesture that brings forth saxophonists, fiddlers and other musicians as men of nimble, shuffling feet. The intriguing talents of Bordoni form an axis upon which the whole show spins. Without Miss Bordoni's "Paris" still would be good pastime, good musical fare; with her as guide and monitor, it becomes the season's smartest festival of fun.

THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER

Mountain Lass

MOLLY O'DAY is the pride of the Ozarks in Harold Bell Wright's "Shepherd of the Hills" next week at the Fenway Theater.

ELKS STAGE PAGEANT

The Boston Lodge of Elks will hold its out-door pageant in celebration of the 30th anniversary of its organization tonight at Braves Field.

This event is postponed from last Saturday. Three hours of exceptional entertainment will be offered the spectators, with vaudeville, dance revues, ballets, music, singing and fireworks as the principal features.

The women's popularity contest being conducted in connection with the celebration will not close till tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. Votes received up to that time will be credited to the candidate for whom they are cast.

The affair is open to the general public.

Patsy as Pola

MARION DAVIES, in a black wig and a solemn expression, impersonates Pola Negri in "The Patsy," coming to the Orpheum.

FIVE TO ONE NEW RATIO

The man who wrote a popular song about a "good man is hard to find," had an insight behind the sealed doors of a Broadway producer's casting office.

During the recent casting of "Fast Company" Sam Forrest, George M. Cohan's stage director, halted the proceedings on several occasions to go out on the highways and remote cities to search for masculine players. Finally, from all corners of the land he rounded up the group of sturdy fellows one sees at the Tremont.

"In my 20 years of casting plays I have always found it easier to find good actresses than good actors," said Sam Forrest. "By actual count there are five suitable women to one suitable man making application for roles in Cohan productions.

"There is no particular reason for this, except that many young men think they are actors when they belong in the trades. Women go into stage art more seriously; they constantly study and they take the business more earnestly. I can offer no other explanation."

In the case of Walter Huston, the star of the play, he sought the part he is now portraying. In fact, he had the assignment before the show was written. He encouraged the comedy to be written. But, according to Mr. Forrest, few men of the stage have the enterprise of Mr. Huston.

"Dollar Day" is announced for Revere Beach for next Wednesday, June 6, which is the date when this popular seashore resort will be in full operation.

"Dollar Day" is sponsored by the amusement division of the Revere Chamber of Commerce and is endorsed by the combined amusement interests of the beach.

The combination tickets, which may be purchased at any of the leading agencies in Boston and also in Revere and Chelsea, carries a face value of approximately $7.00 if one were to pay the price of admission to each place separately.

Revere Beach boasts of many novel places for this season while scores of the other favorites appear agile and span in their new coat of paint.

Holders of the combination ticket may avail themselves for its use from noon until midnight.

In the event of inclement weather the ticket will be honored the following day.

Alvarado Rides the Rods Into the Film Capital

Despite his Castilian features and an olive complexion, Don Alvarado, who is featured at Loew's Orpheum in "Drums of Love," is not Spanish born. Albuquerque, New Mexico, happens to be his birthplace. Alvarado is the son of a cattle raiser. The simple life of a rancher in New Mexico was to dull. Just a week before his graduation from high school he forfeited his diploma by boarding a train for Hollywood. He was stranded somewhere in Arizona, however, when his funds gave out and he arrived in California on the back of a freight train.

Failing to get a place at the Hollywood studios, Alvarado was forced to find employment in a candy store where he stayed nearly a year. At one of the studios he got a job as extra, and that was his beginning.

Reception and Dinner to Victor J. Morris

A complimentary dinner and reception was tendered last evening to Victor J. Morris, manager of Loew's Orpheum Theater, by several of his intimate business associates.

Mr. Morris, accompanied by Mrs. Morris, is leaving for Los Angeles, where he will visit the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Culver City studios.

Mr. Morris is one of the oldest managers in point of service with the Loew organization, his early experiences dating back to the days when the late Marcus Loew operated a number of penny-in-the-slot machines.

At the close of the dinner he was presented with a traveling trunk. Those present were John H. Devlin, T. Francis Meagher, Louis Levine, Joseph H. Brennan and Joseph A. Di Fede.

The engagement will be for two weeks only. The same chorus and principals will be introduced in each of the operas.

Winthrop Ames

It was after making a production of "Iolanthe" over two years ago, that Mr. Ames was inspired to do "The Pirates" and "The Mikado," and that the latter broke the record for a long run of this comic opera in Manhattan is worthy of note.

John Barclay will have the name part of "The Mikado," with Fred Wright in the role of Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner. He will be aided and abetted by William C. Gurdon as Pooh-Bah, Lord High Everything Else, Kitisha, the elderly lady in love with Nanki-Poo, sung by William Williams, will be portrayed by Vera Ross. J. Table Board Furnished

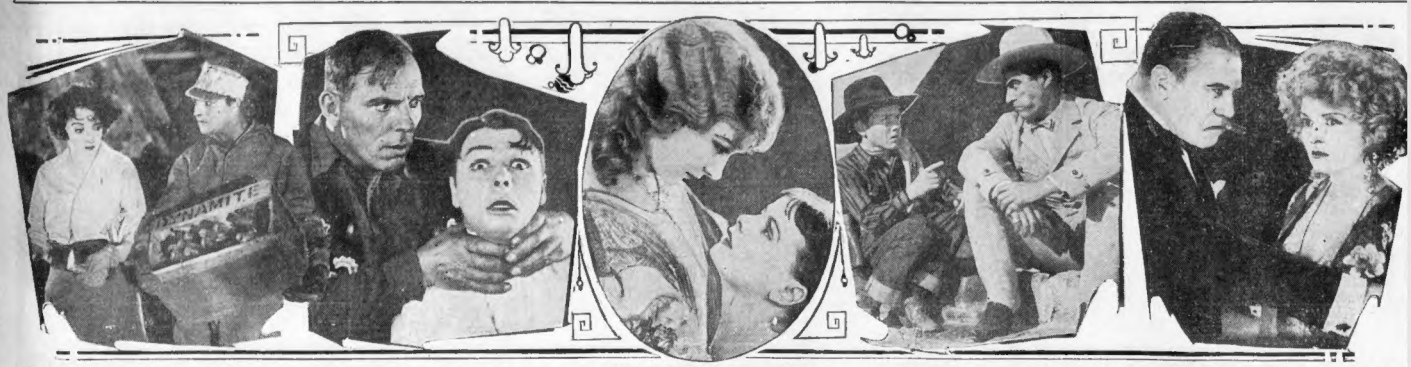
It is no mere pun to say that Walter Huston, star of "Elmer the Great," at the Tremont, has a "fat" part (meaning an important role). During each performance he is required to make away with enormous quantities of food —with the result that he is noticeably adding to his inches around.

STAGE AND SCREEN

And Without Warning!

Tom Wilson and Heinie Conklin have applied themselves to burnt cork and are now known as Ham and Eggs respectively at the Modern and Beacon. Says Ham: "What you mean, small boy, by telling mah gal I'se a fool?" "Why Ham," says Eggs, "I didn't know you was keeping it secret."

TOM MIX EMERGES FROM SHADOWS AND APPEARS "IN PERSON" ON BOSTON STAGE



THIS LOOKS as if they were planning to throw a big party. The blowout occurs in "The Fifty-Fifty Girl" at the Metropolitan in which Bebe Daniels and James Hall are the chief decorations.

FOR SHAME! "Don't try any of your hum chokes on me," laughs the Duke. Gripping drama as portrayed by Karl Dane and George K. Arthur in a piece called "Circus Rookies" at Loew's State next week.

"WHY RALLY, LITTLE HALITOSIS," exclaims Mary Philbin, "WHERE have you been?" Joyce Coad (right) hears this rhetorical question in D. W. Griffith's "Drama of Love" (Orpheum).

"YOU DO NOT CHEWS TO RUN?" asks Buzz Barton. "I chews when I chooses," drawls Tom Mix. This lengthy conversation will positively not appear in Tom's act at the Keith-Albee Boston.

"THINK, GIRL!" thunders Montagu Love, "where have you hid the matches?" This bit of drama occurs in the best of homes, but more particularly in "The Hawk's Nest." (Olympia and Scollay.)

PASSING OF THE 'SILENT' DRAMA

(From The Film Daily—Eventually all pictures will be Movietoned, and the word Movietone dropped as unnecessary, Jesse Lasky stated prior to leaving for Europe.)

By LEO GAFFNEY

HAVING outgrown its swaddling clothes, that precious child, the Silent Drama, now proceeds to find its tongue. The first incoherent babblings have passed to clearer syllables; the Kid has been taking his music lessons, and is now able to stand up confidently "in company" and speak pieces right through to the end without stumbling. His manner of speech is called by different names. Some say it is Vitaphone, others tell of it as Movietone, but names do not matter. The important thing is that young Master Filmshow, now that he has gone beyond the age when he could merely wriggle, is going to be like any other small boy—he is about to exact a great deal of fun out of hearing himself talk.

* * *

JUST how voluble this lad will be in Boston may be estimated from the fact that a half dozen of the larger local picture theaters are getting ready for him. Which, means that in a very short time you will be unable to go to the movies without having him forced upon you—whether you want him or not.

* * *

TO the fussier ones this is going to be a trying period. With them, little children should be seen and not heard. This class also includes the sound sleepers, those calm and pacific souls who always take so much comfort in the shaded hush of the movie house and drop in regularly for a nap. There, too, there is another sensitive minority—more pitiable than any—namely, the vocal teachers and those in the information booths, to whom the soundless films are the only surcease from the steady disturbance of the human voice. How tough it is going to be on THEM!

* * *

BUT right or wrong, hot or cold, this garrulous youngster is bound to be heard, and we will all have to put up with him. If at times he exhibits a tendency to get out of hand—like your little Timothy at home, showing off before the guests—remember that he is young and will undoubtedly improve. Let us look forward to the day when he is completely grown up and puts away childish things. By that time (and it may not be so long, either) he might recall the engaging reticence of his early youth and develop into one of those strong, silent men after all. At least, let us hope so.

* * *

BRIGHT and early on Monday morning that eminent plainsman, Tom Mix, and his "hoss pal," Tony, will arrive at the South Station to play a week's "personal appearance" at the Keith-Albee Boston. And while this department was never known to be either bright or early for anything, it does intend to catch up with the reception committee sometime before the week is out. The idea being to badger Mr. Mix for his portrait —autographed by his press agent in white ink—which we will proudly exhibit for years thereafter to all and sundry upon the slightest provocation. In this manner will we show our great admiration for the one man in all show business who has the bravery to have his name posted in flaring electric lights on the roofiree of his little grey home in the West.

PRODUCER AS MATCHMAKER

"The famous team of Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon will be seen on the local screen for the third time in six months when the underworld drama, "The Hawk's Nest," opens at the Scollay and Washington st. Olympias and Central sq. theaters tomorrow. There is just as much romance between this couple off the screen as there is on it. When First National officials assigned Miss Kenyon to play opposite Sills several years ago they little dreamed that they were playing the roles of match - makers. And after Sills and Miss Kenyon had played together in a series of pictures they found themselves ready to be married.

Milton Sills

Miss Kenyon retired from the screen for a year, but the fascination of working in front of the camera could not be resisted. She returned to play opposite her husband in "Burning Daylight" and in the "Valley of the Giants."

In "The Hawk's Nest" Sills and Miss Kenyon have unusual characterizations, Sills playing the role of an underworld leader and Miss Kenyon the part of a dancer in a shady cafe.

George Jessel to Play "Nize Baby"

By LOUELLA PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, June 2—After looking 'em all over, Mitt Gross has picked George Jessel for the leading role in "Nize Baby." Jessel has that same wistful something that characterizes Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor and which seems typical of some of the best known Jewish actors.

Jessel seems to us a very good choice. At least he meets the approval not only of Gross but of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer whose money will produce the picture.

Everyone is wondering just what M. G. M. will do with "Nize Baby." Having seen musical comedies and cartoons bloom from mere ideas we are no longer amazed when a full grown story develops out of a shadowy title.

FANNIE BRICE, yellow sport dress and sport hat, looked very Hollywood when she was lunching with her director, Archie Mayo, and a few other Warnerites. Her jokes must have been good because she kept the table in roars of laughter.

She gave me a laugh when I heard that big boy Williams is to play opposite her in "My Man." Big Boy is the secret sorrow of half of us gals in Hollywood. He is so intelligent to women and so beautifully blase.

Edna Murphy's petite blondeness will furnish a contrast to Miss Brice. She plays the other woman. It cannot be the vamp. I just couldn't bear to see Edna as a vamp, she looks so ingenue-ish. Andrea De Segurola, who distinguished himself in "Glorious Betsy," will again have a chance to use his voice, for he, too, has a part in "My Man."

THOSE of us who saw Jane Cowl in "The Road to Rome" won't forget her in a hurry. It is one of those plays that you sort of park in the back of the mind and remember on the long winter evenings.

Winfield Sheehan sees a movie, not in Miss Cowl, but in "The Road to Rome," and so he is negotiating with Robert Sherwood, the author, for the film rights. Virginia Valli is the present choice for the gal who vamped Hannibal. Some way we think of Miss Valli as being the pink, proper sort, so it's going to be a little difficult to visualize her as a home-wrecker. Still, you never can tell.

SOMETHING is doing at the United Artists studios for Cecil de Mille. It doesn't take a private detective to fathom that. They are building offices for C. B.

Looks as if Pathe is getting rid of all its high-priced talent. Rod La Rocque's option was not taken up. That shouldn't worry Rod, with 50 jobs lined up waiting for him, among them "The Show Boat," if he wants it. His last picture for De Mille is "Captain Swagger," which is now being directed by L. M. Griffith.

LILYAN TASHMAN, who is credited with being Hollywood's best dressed woman, has gone in strongly for blue this season. I have seen her on three different occasions wearing blue summer clothes. Think of owning three blue dresses all at once. But Lilyan should be able to afford these expensive and smart costumes. What with Edmund Lowe just signing a new contract with Fox and Lilyan herself dashing from studio to studio.

Slightly Inopportune

It is related of Bernard Gorcey, famous Jewish comic in "Abie's Irish Rose," that he enjoys giving after-the-theater delicatessen parties. Recently, a guest who had not seen the show remarked: "Oh, Mr. Gorcey, it was so nice of you to open your store and bring all these fine pickles."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Don't Write, Telegraph

When a show leaves a theater it is customary for the players to "tip" the stage door man. "Are you going to forget me, sir?" once asked an attendant of a noted tragedian. "Not on your life!" exclaimed the actor gripping the outstretched hand, "I'm going to write to you every single week."

GUSTY FILM FOR BEBE AT "MET"

Give Bebe Daniels half a chance and this bustling little comedienne will wrest a chuckle or three out of the direct screen material.

But in her new film at the Metropolitan, "The Fifty-Fifty Girl," Miss Bebe needs all her talent and energy to put it over.

The story is hardy one of her best and but for the splendid assistance of that silken smooth character man, William Austin, it might be a sorry affair indeed.

The yarn might be described as a typically Bebe Daniels one. Again she is the pert little American girl who just cannot keep herself out of a jam.

Along comes James Hall, her leading man, and, in the story, her partner in a mining venture, who accepts her proposal to take the part of the woman if she will run things like a man.

The strain is too great for the headstrong Miss Daniels, however, when she is chased by a gang of cutthroats in the dark tunnels of the mine and, after swallowing her pride on countless occasions, she finally squeals for help. Thanks to the strong right arm of Hall, the day is saved. And Bebe admits that the man really is some good after all.

On the Metropolitan stage, genial Gene Redemich presents John Murray Anderson's bandshow revue, "Xylophonia," with the Musical Johnstons, Ridiculous Recco, Chester Fredericks, Olive May and a group of the Foster dancing beauties.

NORUMBEGA PARK

"The Voice of Norumbega," heard for the first time during the past week, is becoming popular. Due to the novel equipment, music and announcements are broadcast all over the park. Three wooden horns of the most modern type carry the sound.

The midway is another feature of the popular resort. New rides, games and thrills have caused general amusement to throngs.

"ME AND MY SHADOW"

ALLEE-OOP! Coming events cast their shadows before. With t combined Ringling and Barnum circus, which hits town on June 11, yo will find Pete Mardo all dressed up like spot cash, and "Columbia," h little sparring partner. "Columbia" takes his name after the world largest university, or else from a Pullman car on the Grand Trunk

OFFER FOR PLAY

Norman Cannon, author of "He Walked in Her Sleep," which was produced for the first time on any stage last Monday evening at the Copley, has received flattering offers from New York producers to stage the play on Broadway some time in August.

While Cannon has yet made no definite decision it is more than likely that he will not do so until he has consulted with Clive, who arrives home next week.

ST. JAMES CLOSES

The St. James theater closes its doors tonight after an unusually successful season. The players will return to their homes, while Manager Hevia will start planning for the coming season. During the summer, Mr. Hevia will make a series of trips to various cities in search for new faces and new tales.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

RIDDLES IN THE DANCE

While modern dances reflect in a way the speed of life today their popularity is due in great measure to the fact that they are intricate and more or less difficult of accomplishment, in the opinion of Bobby Connolly, originator of the "Varsity Drag," one of the latest stepping diversions to catch the public fancy.

According to Mr. Connolly, who staged the dances for "Good News," now at the Majestic, what the crossword puzzle was to the ordinary methods of thinking, the Charleston and Black Bottom and the Varsity Drag proved to the regular approved methods of using the feet. The fact that these dances were tricky as well as expressive appealed to the puzzle-solving propensity of the crowd, Mr. Connolly points out.

"No one," says Mr. Connolly, "could master the Charleston without many frantic hours of practice, but the harder it was to reach the psychological moment when two ankles nonchalantly twisted and flung to the bang of a band the harder the would-be dancers worked toward their objective. It wasn't long before the country came to be divided into those who could get up on the floor and perform one of these modern dances and those who couldn't.

READING WILL FIGHT ON FOR VINDICATION

Dist.-Atty. Arthur K. Reading will fight impeachment recommended by the special legislative committee, it was learned today.

While the Attorney-General refused to comment on the committee's report, which castigated Reading for his connection with the Decimo Club and L. A. W. corporation, it was learned from authentic sources he intends to continue fighting.

In the event that the House adopts the report, the Attorney-General will battle before the Senate on the grounds that the findings were inconsistent with the facts. Today work is being rushed on the printing of the report and it is expected a copy will be on the desk of all members of the House by Monday morning.

MEREDITH CRITICALLY ILL AT DES MOINES HOME

FINE GIRL WHO USED SLIPPER ON FATHER

Mrs. Rose Wiessman, 20-year-old Dorchester matron, in Brookline District Court today paid a fine of $5 for beating her father, Louis Sheir, of 192 Washington st., Dorchester, with a slipper after routing two flappers police say were in a sedan with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheir and the slipper wielding daughter were all in court, but no testimony was offered except that of the arresting officer.

According to Patrolman Daniel Curtin, he reached the parked machine at Beacon and Washington sts., just as Mrs. Wehrman removed one of her shoes and started to belabor her father with it.

The officer said he did not see the two girls in the car attacked, although eye-witnesses said the dress was nearly torn from one of them.

It was said the daughter overheard a telephone conversation in which her father agreed to take the girls on an automobile ride, and she and her mother followed in another machine, overtaking their quarry in Brookline.

Mrs. Sheier was said to have been an interested witness in her husband's beating up.

Hub's Fire Damage Drops $1,500,000 in Course of Year

Boston's fire loss for 1927 was a million and one-half dollars less than in 1926, it was revealed today. The total was $3,694,641 as compared with $5,199,965 for 1926.

Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman commended in general orders the personnel of the First Division (covering the downtown Boston district) which showed practically the entire reduction.

The reduction in the First Division as compared with 1925 was even greater, for that year showed a total of $3,382,935 as against loss of $1,555,739 for 1927.

In the Second Division the loss was $1,251,819 as against $1,197,625 for 1926; and in the Third Division the loss was $907,653 as compared with $929,234 for the previous year.

TORNADO HURLS TRAIN OFF RAIL; ONE IS KILLED

St. Albans, Vt., June 2 (AP)—One man was killed and ten were injured, three seriously, when a Canadian Pacific passenger train was struck by a tornado today between Stanbridge and Bedford, Que., 20 miles north of here.

Three passenger coaches were thrown down an embankment but the engine remained on the rails. Help was sent from Franham.

The tornado started at Pike river and swept through to Mystic, a distance of six miles, leaving a trail of wrecked barns and houses in a path two acres wide.

AUSTRALIA HOP LEADER TELLS OF FLIGHT

mediately rectified it, and without turning around to our original starting place, we opened up and took off from where we had stopped. This was from the Oakland Airport.

We took off on account of the wind prevailing, although on the morning we took off there was very little wind of any description at all.

CHECKED UP POSITIONS.

As is usual with a large machine heavily loaded, like the Southern Cross, considerable distance was run on the ground before she got into the air. It was about 2000 feet, I think, before we cleared the end of the runway with 25 feet of altitude and proceeded to climb toward Golden Gate, passing over the radio beacon at the Presidio and setting our course immediately for Honolulu.

The radio beacon functioned perfectly, for I think about three or four hours before we lost it, but having Lyon and Warner with us that didn't bother us at all. Capt. Lyon is a magnificent navigator and Warner a wonderful radio man.

We held our course perfectly throughout. At no time were we out of communication with either ship or shore station.

The weather was good all through the day with the exception of a few low clouds screening the surface of the water, which made it impossible to take drift readings. However, after nightfall, we made some altitude and other checking with the positions of different ships, and Capt. Lyon's dead-reckoning navigation, kept us on our true course.

We ran through a couple of light rain squalls and some fairly heavy clouds and had to fly blind for two or three short periods. During the night we sighted three ships and they signaled us with searchlights. We signaled back with searchlights that we carried and a radio check was also made as to our position.

The night was very cold and we were very glad of our fur-lined flying clothes. Ulm and myself in the front seat were particularly so.

We finally saw the first streaks of dawn behind us at 4:40 a. m. (ship's time). From then on, further radio communication and position sights by Lyon held us steadily on our course. Clouds continued until two or three hundred miles from the Hawaiian Islands when we ran into a pretty clear sky.

About 150 miles or more before coming in sight of the islands we sighted numerous low cloud banks which could be easily mistaken for land.

Capt. Lyon, however, who has spent a number of years in this vicinity warned us about the likelihood of being deceived by these and aside from altering our course slightly to confirm that they were merely clouds, we held a steady line to within 60 or 70 miles of Honolulu.

GREETED BY FLEET

The first actual land sighted by Captain Lyon was Maunakea, a large black land of land which lay to the south over the top of the fog and mist. Captain Lyon, although familiar with the islands from the sea, desired a check be made on this point, not having seen it from the air before.

We accordingly diverted south for perhaps 40 miles and found that he had held his original course perfectly. We lost altitude and came below the fog directly opposite the island of Oahu and the fleet across Diamond Head and were met by numerous army and navy airships and flying boats.

I did not know the location of Wheeler Field, but the service machines very kindly led us to it. We landed at 9:50 (Honolulu time) and to our astonishment had a magnificent reception from 15,000 people. Am very glad to be down.

Early discomforts during the flight were some cold and extreme deafness. My personal opinion from this flight as to the value of radio is that in the future flying will depend more on radio than anything else. I have heard it said and I believe it to be true, that our whirlwind equipment is the best in the air. Despite the noise from our whirlwind motors, Warner was able to maintain two-way communication throughout the flight. We had both short and long wave transmission and receiving sets.

I thank everybody very much indeed for the wonderful reception we have had and I feel that the rest of the trip is going to be just as successful as this part has been. This next stage is the longest trip ever taken across water, but we have this advantage that we pass over two or three groups of islands as a check on our navigation.

CHANG QUITS PEKING; 4000 FALL IN BATTLE

Peking, June 2 (AP)—Marshal Chang Tso-Lin is leaving Peking at midnight. It is understood he has arranged for the Shansi leaders to take over the Northern capital peacefully.

Peking, June 2 (AP)—Reports were current today that Mukden troops of the Northern alliance had been defeated at Lululing, 35 miles south of Peking, with heavy casualties.

The defeat was the result of fighting between the Northern troops and Shansi Province troops which are allied with the Nationalists.

SHOTS FIRED IN WEST END CHASE OF ALKY SUSPECT

Five shots were fired by Patrolman Edward H. Quinn today in the West End in an attempt to stop a taxicab speeding from the vicinity of a warehouse on Hawkins st., where alcohol is stored. As Quinn approached the building to investigate, after noticing the taxi standing nearby, a youth ran from the building entrance, jumped into the cab and was driven away at high speed. Although the shots failed to halt the auto, it is believed one or more may have hit the cab and that the vehicle may be identified in this way.

SPLITS TOWN BY CALLING LINDY 'A SWELL HEAD'

Amarillo, Tex., June 2 (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was the center of a storm of civic strife today that had this thriving town by the ears.

"Lindbergh has the swell head," said Editor Gene Howe in his newspaper. "Some of his elders should teach him some manners and courtesy."

"Treason!" replied a large section of the city's 25,000 population, including the local high school students, who long have admired the transatlantic flier as an ideal.

The battle is on in full swing today, with Editor Howe standing by his guns and the pro-Lindbergers threatening to boycott Howe's paper. Several mass meetings have been held.

"I have no apologies to make," said Howe. "I said Lindbergh had a swell head, and I mean just that. If he never returns to Amarillo that will be soon enough for me."

The controversy arose over an invitation which the City Fathers telegraphed to Lindbergh at Wichita asking him to stop here on his way west. Lindbergh did not reply to the invitation, but in Wichita gave out a statement to the effect he would not stop at Amarillo, but would stop at Clovis, N. M.

Then, without any notice, the flying colonel did swoop over the city, performed a few stunts and landed at the field. Nearly all Amarillo rushed to the flying field.

"These people," said Editor Howe, "flocked to the field because he himself had advertised his arrival. Then he proceeded to act bored and annoyed, and was downright insolent. If he didn't want people to know he was here he shouldn't have advertised his arrival and at least could have been courteous to those who approached him."

TEAR DOWN U. S. FLAG IN CANADA

Ottawa, Ont., June 2 (AP)—In the House of Commons today W. G. McQuarrie (Conservative, New Westminster) drew the attention of the government to a press dispatch which he said came from Saranac Lake, N. Y., stating American flags had been torn from an auto occupied by American tourists in Montreal.

McQuarrie suggested that if Americans wished to fly their flag in Canada they might also fly a Canadian flag of the same size as their own.

Premier MacKenzie King said he did not like anything that savored of compulsion in connection with such matters and the matter was one that might very well be discussed between representatives of the two governments.

New Bedford, June 2 (AP)—The body of a seaman was found in Vineyard sound late yesterday by coast guard patrol boat 147 and taken to Woods Hole. It was covered with heavy black oil such as was released from the President Grant after collision with the freighter Kershaw yesterday morning. The man was between 45 and 50. How to Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart As Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become despondent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. All druggists sell lots of it.

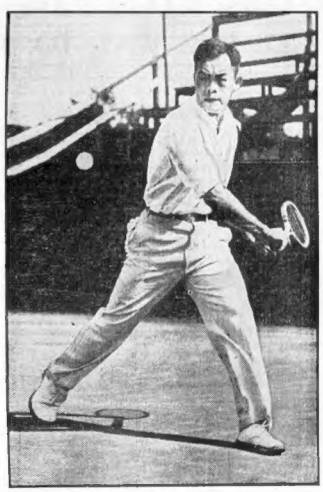
JUMPING TOWARD OLYMPICS. Mildred Wiley, one of the best all-around girl athletes in Greater Boston, will take part in the district Olympic tryouts at Franklin Field tomorrow under the auspices of the Boston Park Department. Miss Wiley holds several records in the high jump, and will try to better her own national mark tomorrow.

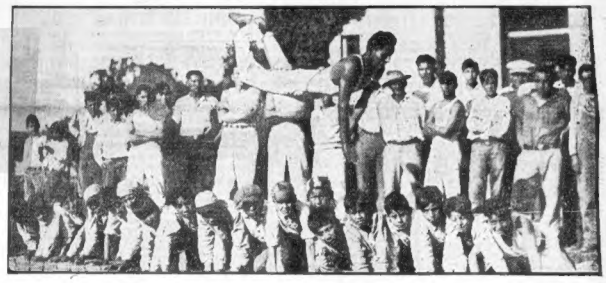
KATHERINE MEARLS is one of the track stars entered in the district Olympic tryouts at Franklin Field tomorrow. She has already won more medals and trophies than there are days in the year.



ANOTHER CHINESE DEFEAT. Paul Kong, member of the Chinese Davis Cup team, who was defeated in singles play by both George Lott and John Hennessey. The American Davis Cup team won all five matches from the Chinese. Kong learned the game in this country, having attended Columbia University.

STAR SHOT PUTTER. Rena McDonald, another of the trio of Boston Swimming Association stars which is entered in the district Olympic tryouts at Franklin Field tomorrow. Miss McDonald is the American record holder in the shot.

TRAINS THOROUGHBREDS Judy Johnson is shown above on Broomhill, one of the mounts she has personally trained. Miss Johnson is one of the very few women trainers in the country. She is the daughter of Ed Johnson, well-known trainer at Belmont Park, L. I.



A RECORD DIVE. Nathaniel Peak, a full-blooded Osage Indian student at Haskell University, shown setting a world record for tumbling. He cleared 18 men, a most remarkable performance. Before he landed Peak turned a complete somersault.

JACK THE GIANT KILLER. Jack De Mave, clever heavyweight shown above, will face Jimmy Maloney Monday night at Braves Field. If the Boston strong boy can knock him out he will have a shot at about $50,000 worth of fights. Dynamite Jim has trained as never before.

MORE OLYMPIC MATERIAL. New York has an Olympic candidate in Miss Katherine Donovan, shown [illegible] the extreme right, who is sure to go to Amsterdam this summer. A FIGHTING CHAMPION. Tommy Loughran, light heavy champ, who fought Pete Latzo last night, and who has two more title bouts scheduled before the middle of June. In one he will meet Lomski, the man who knocked him down twice in their last meeting, but who could not put him out.

Maloney Confident He Will Knock Out De Mave

BIG MONEY AWAITS VICTOR

Bout With Roberto Roberti Next Monday for Maloney If He Beats DeMave

Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, with the dynamite back in his right hand, will attempt to accomplish a knockout victory over Jack DeMave at Braves Field next Monday night in his first appearance in a Boston ring in three years.

Tom Heeney, next opponent of Tunney, Johnny Risko and Jack Sharkey, the ranking heavyweights of the game, failed to K. O. DeMave but "Dynamite" Jim is confident he can do it.

Johnny Risko promised to hang a K. O. over on De Mave when they met last year in Grand Rapids. Not only did he fail but he also lost the decision.

Then Sharkey tried to crush down De Mave but failed. Even the tremendous punches of Tom Heeney had no effect on De Mave and the Amsterdam heavyweight is one of the few in the game today whose record is not marred by a knockout defeat.

If Maloney can crush down such a formidable opponent when he makes his reappearance next Monday night, no doubt fistic fans will be forced to admit that the South Boston heavyweight is worthy of his ambition to stage a successful comeback.

WINNER TO MEET ROBERTI.

Then, too, the fact that a bout with Roberto Roberti, an event which should attract the greatest crowd to history in this city, hangs in the balance, is a further incentive for Maloney to win against De Mave Monday night.

In accepting De Mave as an opponent for his comeback fight before his friends in the Hub, Maloney simply asserted the confidence that reigns in his camp since he first started the training vigil six months ago, unknown to his closest friends, which has resulted in putting him in the best condition of his entire career.

De Mave at the same time realizes that a victory at this time over Maloney will put him in line for some lucrative matches. In one bout in this city against Jack Hunsaker, De Mave scored a big hit, and Hub fans regard him as the right sort of an opponent to force Maloney to exhibit everything in his repertoire to win.

Nothing that has occurred in local boxing circles during the past three or four years has attracted the attention and aroused the enthusiasm of the fans such as this return to the ring of Jimmy Maloney.

Without doubt one of the greatest drawing cards of all time in this section, it seems that 100 per cent of the fans are rooting for Maloney to win this fight, for they are eager to see him once again knocking on the door of the titleholder.

The story of Maloney's weight, 186 pounds, tells that boxing fans considerable, for it shows that he is in better condition than ever before for this reason will be backed by the fans to triumph over De Mave.

Promoter Eddie Mack staged a 10 round bout to the card yesterday to round out the 50 rounds of boxing at a Jimmy a month ago at the show. Hub fans will get their first glimpse at Benny Kid Carter of Mexico, who will clash with Tony Santello of Worcester.

FAST FEATHERS ON CARD

These youngsters are regarded among the topnotch featherweights in the country. Only a couple of months ago Carter defeated Tony Mandell in Chicago and last week he beat Tony Carney in Providence. Upon his last appearance in a Hub ring, Santello won from Benny Tisch in one of the best bouts of the season.

Three six-round bouts and three four-rounders also are on the card. Frank Moore and Eddie Curley, bitter Hub rivals will meet in one of the six-rounders, while George Carney of the North End, and Frank Tyrrell of Canada are scheduled to swap wallops in another.

In the third six-round event, Phil Flanagan of Malden meets Spike Hennessey of Waltham.

The three four-round bouts should provide plenty of real action and Hub fans will see a return bout between Terry Mitchell, Somerville, and Steve McGraw of Cambridge, rival heavyweights. Young Hennessey of Fall River and Jimmy McGonigle of Weymouth, both of whom won their last fights here by knockouts, will clash in another bout, while Freddie O'Connor of South Boston, former amateur star, will turn pro, meeting Frankie Mason of the North End.

CREAM OF TRACK WORLD IN NEW YORK A. C. GAMES

New York, June 2 (INS)—The New York Athletic Club will hold its 120th set of track and field games on Travers Island this afternoon with an entry that is resplendent with the foremost eastern Olympic hopes, and ten of the stalwart young men from the Pacific Coast who wrested from Leland Stanford University the intercollegiate outdoor championship at Harvard Stadium a week ago today.

The brilliant performers who will compete include Eric Krenz of Stanford; Emerson "Jud" Spencer, Stanford; Jackson Scholz, N. Y. A. C.; Frank Hussey, N. Y. A. C.; Pinky Sober, Olympic Frovidieck, and Ross Nichols of Stanford.

Dempsey-Tunney Bout Talk Is "Bunk"

New York, June 2 (AP)—Talk of a third Dempsey-Tunney fight this September or at any other time is "all bunk," Tex Rickard said today.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," the promoter said, "and I will be willing to wager $50,000 to back up that statement. Dempsey does not intend to fight again and, even if he did, Tunney would not meet him this year. The champion will have only one fight and that will be against Tom Heeney."

Instead of fighting a second time, in September, Tunney has virtually completed plans to start that month on a world tour.

Dempsey's stage contract, it is understood, would keep the ex-champ mauled from attempting a fistic come-back anyway. Under it he starts rehearsals in July, with the actual production to go on in August.

LOUGHRAN WINS VERDICT OVER PETE LATZO

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, June 2—Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion of the world, proved himself every bit a champion last night when he successfully defended his title by defeating Pete Latzo, one-time welterweight champion, over the 15-round route.

Had the bout been a 10-round affair, Latzo might today be sporting the title. But the former Scranton miner wired after the 10th round and Loughran forged to the front in such a manner as to leave no doubt as to the right decision.

The Philadelphia dancing master showed his real championship ability after the tenth round when he set a torrid pace that the former miner was unable to compete with. He centered his attack to the body and with a lightning-like left, pounded Pete into submission.

Loughran has hurdled the biggest obstacle in his defense of the title. He is signed to fight Jim Slattery of Buffalo and one other opponent. The bout drew 18,000 faithful fans despite the fact the show was postponed from last Wednesday night.

Loughran scaled in at 173½ pounds while Latzo showed the effects on his mid-riff, making 168.

RANGERS PLAY FALL RIVER TOMORROW

By BILL McAULEY

The Glasgow Rangers, worlds champions of the soccer game, will get their first test of the professionals in this country when they stack up against the Brooklyn Wanderers today at Ebbets Field, New York.

Tomorrow at Tiverton, R. I., they will get an even harder test when they clash with the Fall River eleven at Marks Stadium. This, in our estimation, is the hardest contract the Rangers have on their schedule.

The Marks Stadium holds the record for a crowd attending a soccer game, more than 14,000 having watched the Marksmen play Coats in a cup game a few years ago. But this New England record is sure to be broken Sunday when the Light Blues of Ibrox Park step out on the pitch.

Tommy Muirhead, an ex-Woodsies manager, is captain of the worlds champions and he will in all probability lead the invaders against the Marksmen. More than 2000 Hub fans will attend this game.

The visitors have a wonderful aggregation of stars and they all combine to make the club one of the best in the history of the bootleg game. Their record for this year includes winning the Scottish Cup, Scottish League, and the Glasgow Charity Cup.

The stars to watch in tomorrow's game are Morton, outside left, Cunningham, inside right, Archibald, outside right, Meiklejohn, center-half, Buchanan, right-half, and Muirhead, left-half.

The Marksmen will field their regular league team and every fan will be rooting for the local eleven to put over a win.

There is an advance sale of 10,000 tickets for the game.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"TOMMY PARLE'S announcement that the Suffolk A. A. has decided to pass out of the Boston fistic field as a result of the recent death of Tom Goodwin, its leading spirit, is another hard blow to boxing," said Mr. Boston today.

"During the past five years," went on the veteran, "the Suffolk Club has set the pace for the other boxing organizations in this city. It holds all of the records for indoor and outdoor promotions.

"Much of the success of the club was due to Goodwin, who acted as matchmaker over a five-year period.

"When the Suffolk Club was reorganized five years ago, the late Billy Canty and Tom Goodwin were the live wires of the organization. Death stepped in and claimed Canty before he had reached the thirtieth milestone. Goodwin continued the work along with Tommy Parle. Goodwin, still in his thirties, died after a short illness.

"A little more than a year ago, Lawrey McCarty, formerly of Roxbury, who had been identified with the Suffolk Club in the days before legalized boxing, was killed in an accident in the West. Like Canty and Goodwin, he, too, was a young man with a long span of life apparently before him when death stepped in and claimed him.

"Ivey Lewis, who, for a time was connected with the Suffolk Club, died a few years ago.

"It would seem that some ill omen hovered around this organization. After Goodwin died, I understand that for a time the question of reorganization was considered. One prominent manager of boxers was mentioned as matchmaker, but he hesitated about even considering the job on account of the endings of most of those who at any time had been connected with the club.

"Personally, I believe it was merely a series of coincidents, but it may be just as well that the books of the Suffolk Club are closed for all time.

"Then, too, it would not have been just right for some other matchmaker to have brought any discredit to a club which had always stood as a leader in its line. Sharkey, Maloney, Risko, Villa, Walker, Malone, Bogash, Reed, Weinert, Goldstein and virtually all of the headliners in the fistic art fought under its banner.

"THINGS happen rapidly in the fistic game. When one club steps out of the field, the others strive harder to gain an advantage. At the time the Suffolk A. A. closed its doors, the Argonne A. A. and Arena Club were in the field.

"The Argonne Club is staging Monday night shows at Braves Field. The Suffolk Club has planned to operate at Fenway Park. The Arena Club, with Col, Bob McKirdy as the jockey, has secured the boxing rights at the home of the Red Sox.

"I also understand that Tommy Parle, who had been identified with the Suffolk Club as secretary, has cast his lot with the Arena Club. This will be pleasing news to the fans who have secured their pasteboards from Parle in the past. Unlike most ticket sellers, he believes that personal service goes a long ways to keep the fans satisfied.

"It is the Arena Club's plan to stage only big bouts at Fenway Park. It will not enter the big time action at first. It will only put on shows when it has something worth while to offer. There is plenty of room in Boston for two clubs. If the promoters use a little common sense, they will prosper.

"AL MELLO, New England welterweight champion, will swing back into action on Monday night at Hartford, when he collides with Frank O'Brien, a middleweight. O'Brien is a terrific puncher and very aggressive. He is sure to give Mello a hard battle.

"Boxing in Connecticut is on a high plane on account of the able way the sport is governed by Chairman Tom Donohue of the Boxing Commission."

HARVARD PLAYS HOLY CROSS

The second game of the annual Holy Cross-Harvard baseball series will be staged at Fitton Field, Worcester, today, with the Purple a favorite in the betting.

Harvard will take the field weakened by the loss of Jack Harlow, Holy Cross nemesis, who is under a doctor's care at his home in Chicago, and Ralph Sullivan, first string shortstop, under the care of an osteopath.

Fons or Dobrun will get the pitching assignment for the Crusaders, with Howard Whitmore, who performed well against Michigan a week ago, is slated to pitch for the Crimson.

Cubs' Manager Is Fined $100

New York, June 2 (AP)—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, has been fined $100 for abuse of Umpire "Dolly" Stark during the game with the Pirates at Pittsburgh yesterday, President Heydler of the National League announced today.

OLYMPIC TEST FOR WOMEN

An unusual large gathering of fans are expected to appear at Franklin Park tomorrow afternoon to witness the women's track meet and sectional Olympic tryouts under the direction of the Boston Park Department.

Twelve events are scheduled on the rather lengthy program which takes in two New England junior championships, 50-yard dash and 100-yard dash, nine open events and one novice event.

The open events include, 60-yard hurdle race, 100-meter run, 400-meter relay race, running broad jump, running high jump, discus throw, javelin throw and putting of 8-pound shot.

The pick of the New England girl athletes will be on hand, chief among these star performers will be Katherine Mearls, Mildred Wiley, Rena MacDonald and Fanny Madiera.

Fanny Madiera is former Canadian dash champion who has a fine record in the sprint events. She is now a resident of this section and will enter the events of the Boston Swimming Association.

The 100 meters event should bring out some very stiff competition with Katherine Mearls, the best of the sprinters in this section of the country; Lillian Murray of the W. S. A. of Brookline, Gertrude Bund, Marcella Conway and Anna Cobb of the Malden A. C.

Mildred Wiley, national indoor and New England indoor and outdoor high jump champion and holder of the American championship, will be seen in the high jump. The Woburn girl will be pitted against the cream of the high jumpers from Greater Boston.

Elinor Churchill, of Exeter, N. H., is out to establish a new world's record in the baseball throwing contest. Miss Churchill is former national champion and holds the American record.

Medford Favored to Win Harvard Schoolboy Meet

LAWRENCE TEAM IS STRONG

Somerville High Likely Winner of Class B Division at Stadium

Harvard will hold its annual interscholastic outdoor track meet this afternoon at the Brighton horseshoe. With 32 schools entered in these games, the racing should be excellent.

Eight schools are in Class A, while 24 teams will battle for honors in Class B.

Medford high, with 25 boys entered, has a good chance to win the Class A title. Tech can come out at the top in the Amateur Interscholastic last winter and also won the Mayor Curley indoor track carnival. Coach Eddie Hurd has a classy lot of athletes on the squad and should be in the thick of the scoring.

Lowell high also has 25 athletes entered for the games. That aggregation is strong and could get a good account of itself. Walter Langley, who is back in western and track circles today after one of his globe-circling record trips, is a star of the finest of the sprinting and distance runners in the state to-day.

BRIDGELINE 1 YTERS IS BOYS

Class C Tim Hines' Brookline squad of 15 boys is another likely point winner. Ted Bowman, who is expected to try at the Boston College Intercollegiates this spring, and his 4-man 1-mile relay team should be strong in the class.

Lawrence high has but 14 athletes entered in the games, but may be the final victor. Six or seven of these lads are sure to be at the front in their various events, and the team has a chance to win the championship.

In Class B the competition will be just as fast as in the higher ranking up the points. A small total may be enough to win a ribbon in the group. Ten records have been posted, but a few of these are in some danger as Dan Howell of Dean, Class A, and the competition here should be just as fast as in the higher group.

Somerville has a fine chance to win the Class B title, despite the fact it at some of the fastest relay teams in the high school ranks. Several of the boys will be in the games.

Dean, Quincy, Wrentham, Hanover and Medway are top-heavy favorites in their respective groups in Class B.

ST. JOHN'S PLAYS DEAN

St. John's Prep plays the Dean Academy track relay at Franklin. The outcome of this contest has a bearing on the point score. Like the Dean, and the game will be but a large number of school fans.

Coach Sullivan of Dean has a good team, he has had no game undefeated. Their opponents have been Tommy Downey, a crack sprinter, may go on to point for Dean. He has had a good year and can offer the Deanites many points of value.

Daniel Bourque, former Harvard halfback, is in the line-up of Tom O'Neil's Holy Cross baseball opponents. He is a regular on the ground of each will put Bourque on the list of the most valuable athletes in prep school ranks.

Harney Cole is the only man in the world president of the boys' patrolling the garden.

Boston English and Latin schools trek to University Heights to play today.

"Iron Man" Bends Neck to Cupid's Yoke

Dave Mishel, former Brown University athlete and one of the famous "Iron Men," is to join the Benedicts tomorrow. Mishel, who is now one of the coaches at Brown, is to be married to Miss Sara Wineburg of Providence, R. I.

The ceremony will take place at Weagus Auditorium, Mishel at 2:30 o'clock. After the honeymoon the couple will reside in Providence. Mishel will coach the Brown crew and track teams while Mishel will coach the swimmers.

FILLING UP A BIG GAP IN THE BRAVES INNER DEFENSE

George Sisler, new Braves first baseman, has found the National League pitching to his liking. The former Senator is performing as he did in 1922 when he was judged the most valuable player in the American League.

Yanks Hit at Right Time, Says Gehrig

DEAR ROG—When I broke into the big leagues one of the first things Miller Huggins said to me was this: "The difference between a champion and a dub is the ability to grab the breaks when they come—and if they don't come try to make them."

I didn't know what Hug meant then, and I was a bit too green to ask him. But I know now, Rog, he's right as a fox.

As you know we have just finished a series with the Athletics that was capped by one of those [illegible]. As it turned out it [illegible] for the champions.

[illegible] .750 ball for four weeks is pretty apt to top the league, don't you think?

I'm glad you fellows have grabbed George Sisler. George is too good a man to get out of baseball. I've had a lucky time this spring, but I don't think he [illegible] a real bellyacher. He is.

And I wouldn't be surprised to see Ruth go like a house afire. You know a change frequently gets a player out of a slump.

Give him my regards, won't you?

Very truly,

Lou Gehrig

BUT the thing that impressed me most was the way the Athletics got me out in the games, as it was the way in which we won them. The Athletics got as many men on base during the series as we did, but they got about as many hits. They looked about as well as the Athletics did.

But here's the difference. When the Yankees got men on bases and a hit meant runs—they didn't get it.

It is [illegible] a good point of pitching to pitch to the Yankees. They seem to have no weakness with it. If the batter was [illegible] over a curve ball, and when the A's [illegible] one.

UNDERSTAND I'm not panning the A's, Rog. You [illegible] may see every ray reversed. We [illegible] I'm trying to do is to show Miller Huggins's notion is the right one. I'm trying to point out is that the difference between a champion and a dub [illegible] a way which [illegible] just a split [illegible] pass or [illegible] a hit.

We go west this week and [illegible] series will [illegible] be in Chicago [illegible] Detroit [illegible] don't [illegible] we'll do as good against [illegible] as we did [illegible] I hope. [illegible] know, we beat out [illegible] games [illegible] I don't [illegible] The weather [illegible] Detroit [illegible] I [illegible] I [illegible] I

ACTIVITY IN CHURCHES ON INCREASE

Extensive preparations are being made for the Northern Baptist Convention to be held in Detroit, Mich., June 16-21. This gathering was held in the same city fifteen years ago when the city numbered 600,000 inhabitants. It now has a citizenship of 1,500,000. Meetings will be held in the splendid Masonic Temple.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has given a tremendous incentive to Northern Baptists by making the same offer for the coming year which he made last season. He is prepared to duplicate, dollar for dollar, up to $250,000 all money collected by the denomination over and above what was given the year previous.

A unique missionary effort by Unitarians is called "The Post Office Mission" and has for its object the distribution throughout America of thousands upon thousands of printed sermons and pamphlets from well-known Unitarian ministers. Over 200 branches of the Women's Alliance of this denomination are engaged in this form of effort to let the world know what Unitarians believe and stand for. Headquarters in Boston are at 25 Beacon st.

Julius Rosenwald, the Chicago philanthropist who has set aside more than $[illegible] many for good causes, has now applied to the directors of the Rosenwald fund that the entire amount must be distributed within 5 years of his death, believing that each generation should take care of its own philanthropies.

Reports from New York state that $8,700,000 has been contributed toward a $10,000,000 fund initiated by Mr. Rosenwald toward Jewish colonization in Soviet Russia.

Union churches of New England will hold a seventh annual conference at the Union Church in Colinsville, four miles outside of Lowell, next Wednesday. The gathering is called each year by Mrs. Maude [illegible] president of [illegible] and is now [illegible] to towns and cities where unity has been found desirable, and where representatives of numerous denominations find that they can worship harmoniously together in a common [illegible] spirit. Prominent among the speakers will be the Rev. E. Tallmadge Root, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Federation, the Rev. Wallace Hayes, chaplain at Butler's the Rev. Frederick M. Loud of Mattapan, the Rev. Alfred Stone of West Cranford, the Rev. Vaughan Dabney of Second Church, Dorchester, and the Rev. Charles H. Davis of Wakefield.

Rev. H. F. Clark, a colored minister of Boston, served his congregation in Lawrence for 16 years without salary, and usually paid his own car fares. During the week he worked in a factory shipping room in Boston. He and his people have erected a church that is now free of mortgage, but as yet no salary is forthcoming, and the preacher still works on.

Over 10,000 "Good Will Rugs" for the promotion of better feeling between the United States and Mexico have already been distributed by the Federal Council of Churches, and federations of churches throughout the United States, to be filled with [illegible] for immediate shipment. More than 200 vast bags have gone from the Greater Boston Federation of Churches to "good will recruits" in and about Boston. The bag is made of [illegible] cents and a lot of articles to go into it varies in cost according to the donors.

A Mexican school teacher is quoted as saying "All Mexico wants is a little friendly school [illegible] and both [illegible] that four that not one will come in my [illegible] that just one will come to this school."

At the usual Sunday outdoor service of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches on Charles st. mall, Boston Common, tomorrow afternoon, several well known preachers will take part. Rev. William M. McNair of the Prospect St. Congregational Church, Cambridge; Rev. J. Lester Rankins of the Arlington Heights Methodist Church, and Rev. Ray A. Heron of Grace Church, Lawrence, will all speak. The Federation will continue its Tuesday evening services on the Tremont st. mall. Rev. John A. McClelland of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Rev. Harry R. Hill of the First Methodist, and a student from Gordon College will be in charge.

A graduation [illegible] Massachusetts Institute [illegible] will take place at [illegible] morrow afternoon [illegible] Rev. Henry [illegible] this afternoon at 4 [illegible] preach at the [illegible] Rev. Gardner M. Day will preach in the evening.

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, noted visitation evangelist, who will launch a Greater Boston evangelistic campaign next winter, will be the preacher at 10:30 a. m., Sunday, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Temple st., Beacon Hill.

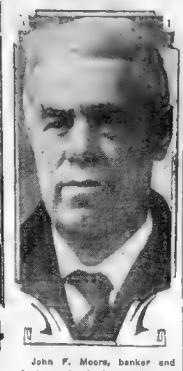
'Religious Principles Must Underlie Business'

Franklin W. Ganse, a Congregationalist who knows how to mix religion and business. Many a religious drive for funds depends upon Mr. Ganse for inspiration and direction. He has little use for a Sunday type of religion that is put aside Monday morning.

William T. Rich, known throughout New England Methodism, as a friend to struggling churches and a merchant of devout religious faith. He attends the Methodist church in Newtonville, where he is a tower of strength.

Bernard J. Rothwell. A leading Catholic layman and a successful flour merchant of Boston. He sees no reason why religious principles cannot be applied to business transactions. They inculcate honor and high standards, he says.

David A. Ellis, lawyer and a member of Temple Israel congregation, was for ten years a member of the Boston School Board, four of which he was chairman. Life and religion are one to him. Director of the S. P. C. C., Legal Aid, Jewish charities, etc.



John F. Moors, banker and broker, who is known for his many public and private services. Business to him means greater opportunity to be helpful. He is a Unitarian.

RELIGION UNDERLIES GOOD BUSINESS

His theme is, "The Changeless Christ and Evangelism." This will be Dr. Kernham's first appearance in Boston prior to his campaign.

A Young People's rally will be held at 7:30 p. m., at which time Dr. Henry Hallam Saunderson will bring the message of the evening. Christ and the Youth of Today. The Rev. Harry Belmont Hill, pastor of the church, will conduct the installation service for the new officers of the Epworth League. Special music will be sung by James H. Houghton, soloist, and the vested choir.

A "new members reunion" will be held at the Disney Memorial Church, 67 Richmond st., Dorchester, this evening, when the [illegible] will be [illegible] "What Is in The Book." [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] this church since the pastor came six years ago.

The Quadrennial Methodist Conference which closed its month's session at Kansas City last Thursday was notable for many of its sessions and for a number of actions taken. New England stood out prominently upon frequent occasions, especially in connection with reports of committees headed by President Daniel L. Marsh, of Boston University, and Dr. L. O. Hartman, editor of Zion's Herald.

The Rev. Lee A. Pelge of the Porter Square Universalist Church will preach on the church's most difficult problem tomorrow morning when he takes for his topic, "Understanding of God." Preparations will be made for Children's Sunday, June 10.

Following a full and detailed report of a proposed campaign of visitation in the City of Boston, headed by Dr. A. Earl Kernahan next January and February, the Methodist ministers assembled at Wesley an Hall last Monday unanimously approved the plan and offered full cooperation. This evangelistic venture is under the direction of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches with Dr. Robert Watson as chairman of the committee in charge. Baptists and Presbyterians have also approved the plans for evincing interest in churches and religion.

Can all religious meet in conference and discuss the one large topic, how to make a saner world? That is the question to be argued at a gathering at Geneva next September, when [illegible] from [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] elected delegates, but a large group of "religiously minded" people from [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

DOLLY ignored Jerry's correction. "His name is Gordon Hazzard" she said. "He's quite a well known photographic model—posing for hats and things like that. And then he does bits in the movies sometimes. And he's a scream when he's under the influence of Little Red Riding-hood."

"Looks quite a person," remarked Jerry incidentally.

"He is not so. He's terribly vain. He just thinks he's the best looking thing God ever made. Guess what he said to me, Jerry? We had lunch, and he spent the whole time telling me confidentially that hundreds of girls were crazy about him and several times he'd been asked to marry him, but that he was too hard to get to be a married man."

"Look out," broke in Jerry, "you had lunch!"

"Oh, how!"

"What is a scream man"

"Certainly. Who not? We got through at the same time and came out of the studio together, and we had had to get to know one another because both good-looking girls and afterwards and so we went into a restaurant that's near there and ate it's a simple place. Is there anything so awful about that?"

"Oh, no!" declared Dolly with spirit. "If this is the way you're going to act, I won't say another word."

CHILDREN'S TREASURES

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A SMALL face smeared with dirt, two wide gray eyes were lifted in terror as the wee boy's father rounded the corner of the front porch and proceeded toward the kitchen door. Frantically the child tried to replace a section of wooden lattice work on the back porch before the man should arrive, but his small, shaking hands failed and the father swooped down on him.

"What are you doing?" What have you got there?"

Tears filled the big eyes. "Nothing," mumbled the child.

Impatiently the father jerked the pieces of board away and gazed in scorn at a pile of odds and ends which meant nothing to him but which were the beloved treasures of the little son.

The father knelt and dragged them swiftly out. "Just trash—trash!" he stormed, throwing out horse chestnuts, cracked marbles, a ball of dirty twine, an envelope of cancelled stamps, two cornhusks and a wagon with three wheels.

"Take this to the ash can and dump it in," ordered the man. "I won't have the place cluttered up with this sort of junk." The boy obeyed, while the father nailed the loose board which had so faithfully protected the youngster's hoard of precious possessions from prying eyes.

Convinced that he had given his son a lesson in neatness and the foolishness of collecting "trash," the man went indoors, whereupon he immediately informed the mother that he had taken out a 20-year endowment policy for Junior. He believed in preparing for the future, did that father. Splendid principle, too, but it did seem so queer that he didn't sense in his small son, the very same instinct working to manifest itself.

Each child repeats the history of the race, going through the cave-building, tree dwelling, fire-making, and food and necessity hoarding of his ancestors. Junior was only working out the instinct (which he of course did not understand at all) of preparing for future times. He was collecting, hoarding, hiding his little possessions against the time when they would be needed. He was developing his first step toward providing for his family and himself.

The father took out insurance for that same purpose, but this father was so intent on amassing money and possessions to amply provide for his family in case he were taken from them that he did not stop to try to understand the same principle at work in his small son.

So, all through the boy's youth, he was made to throw things out—not to clutter up his room or the yard with things which looked useless to the father. After many trials at it, many attempts to hide his treasures, which always ended in discovery and a scolding, the child finally grew discouraged and ceased. Then his father said he was improving. He was head. He was a good boy.

BUT, when the lad graduated from high school and worked all one summer, earning a fairly good salary for a young man, the father was completely at loss to understand why none of the money was saved; why the youth bought shirt after shirt, only to throw them away after wearing a few times; why when his whole hiking suit was stolen one day he merely shrugged his shoulders and said he'd get another.

So when your child strews meaningless looking objects all over the place, see to it that he collects them neatly and keeps them in one spot, but let him collect them. Give him one drawer or, better still, a chest or box which has a key, and let it be strictly his. He is only working out an age-old instinct to lay up stores for the future. Your boy is at the squirrel period, if he has gone in for hoarding. Later on in life it will mean that he is a man who provides for those dependent upon him. Encourage it, but confine the collection to one particular spot, then your house will not be lined with "just trash."

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Is there a moral clause in your contract, Mr. Hays?

MENTAL ATTITUDE

By LUCY LOWELL

A WISE man remarked once that success or failure in business is caused more by mental attitude than by mental capacities. And the only fault I have to find with this is that those two words, "in business," make it too limiting; they narrow it down to one set of activities, whereas, removed, the thought becomes a rule to apply to all human effort.

Not mental capacities but mental attitude determines success or failure, whether it is a giant industry you are organizing or new curtains for the bedroom you are making.

The man or woman who recognizes a certain stable intelligence, a sure capacity for accomplishment, even though that capacity possess bounds, will undertake a piece of work confidently, feeling always that best effort put forth always manages to excel itself. In this way, the impossible becomes possible and the world's work in the home, in business and industry, in public office goes on.

It is the one who goes at a task with the feeling that others might do it but he could not who is licked at the start.

These are the folks always calling down maledictions upon their luck—and this, in itself, is inviting failure. Luck, of course, is not some occult agency bound to go for or against you as some unseen, despotic power directs.

Luck is mental attitude — no more, no less. Therefore, if you wish your luck to be good—that is, if you desire a sanguine mental attitude—assume that you play in good luck, and say so. Why insist upon handicapping yourself with a bad mental attitude when the good one is yours for the taking?

You get out of life success in proportion to the faith in yourself you put into it. "I can't" is bound to lose; "I'm not sure" is a broken reed, to give way under your weight; but "I can" never misses.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILY, my daughter, there be three things which mystify me.

* * *

The way of a woman with an automobile.

* * *

The way of a radio fiend with the dials.

* * *

And the way of a man with SPRING FEVER!

* * *

For now cometh the season of lassitude, when a man's bones are filled with weariness and his spirit with languor, and his life is just one "weak moment" after another!

* * *

When he is too weak to lift a spade or swing a hoe in the garden—but not too weak to swing a wicked golf club or to wave a tennis racket.

* * *

When he is too feeble to mount a step-ladder and hang the summer curtains—but strong enough to climb the steps to the baseball bleachers and to face sunstroke or pneumonia while he shrieks for the home team.

* * *

When he waxeth faint at the thought of carrying the old trunks down from the attic and packing the furs in camphor—but waxeth strong again in time to pack up his fishing tackle and his knapsack.

* * *

When he droopeth wearily after 10 minutes of bending over a flower bed—but straighteneth up perceptibly at the thought of digging bait, lugging water and rowing a boat through pleasant mountain streams.

* * *

When the prospect of laboring all day in a swivel chair is enervating beyond endurance—but the vision of laboring all day upon the engine of a motor boat restoreth his spirit.

* * *

When he says the bed springs take down the portieres or put up the fly screens straineth his muscles beyond their power—but to climb a mountain or march in a Knights Templar parade only refresheth him.

* * *

Verily, verily, this is the magic hour when the "BOY" in every man's heart ariseth and believeth for recognition, and he longeth to go forth and PLAY as a little child.

* * *

When he "playeth hookey" from the office, reveleth in wild neckties and blinding hosiery, watcheth the skies for signs of baseball weather, gazeth after passing flappers, and yelleth and singeth at conventions.

* * *

For seven months of the year a man laboreth and is civilized—but with the return of spring he reverteth to type and becometh an innocent savage!

* * *

And the only thing that causeth him a WEAK moment and crippleth his muscles is the sight of WORK!

* * *

Yet, what woman doth not envy a man the playboy spirit in his soul—which is the spirit of Eternal Youth?

FAMOUS COMPOSERS

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

KARL TAUSIG, most renowned pupil of the great Liszt, was born at Warsaw, November 4, 1841. As a piano virtuoso, composer, and teacher, the name of Tausig ranks high on music's scroll of honor.

His father, who had been a pupil of Thalberg, was the boy's first teacher. At the age of 14 his exceptional promise came to the attention of Liszt, who took him under his guidance as a student. Due to his fortunate association both with a pupil of the eminent Thalberg, and the great master Liszt, himself, Tausig combined the qualities of the two schools in his interpretations. He eventually surpassed Liszt in flawlessness of technique—due, in great part, to his systematic practice of his own transposing finger exercises.

Tausig's public debut was made at Berlin in 1858, the occasion being an orchestral concert conducted by Von Bulow. His immediate success was assured and he toured the principal cities of Germany, Russia and Austria, giving concerts and leading orchestras. Everywhere he was hailed as the leading pianist of his day, Rubenstein alone approaching him.

An earnest student of philosophy and ardent in all of the higher intellectual pursuits, Tausig was able to temper an ardor and enthusiasm comparable to that possessed by Liszt, giving him an inestimable advantage over his contemporaries whose immensity often interfered with the perfection of their execution. His compositions exhibit a keen knowledge of musical principles and a brilliant genius for melodic expression.

Tausig's death in 1871 at the age of 30 years robbed the music world of one whose short, sensational career promised an even more brilliant maturity.

PLAYGROUNDS PLEA FINE FOR SAFETY

By FRANK A. GOODWIN,
Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The safety dont's contest conducted by the Boston Evening American, which has just come to a close, was remarkable because of the widespread interest manifested in it by mothers in every part of New England and because of the different phases of safety discussed by them.

A letter from Mrs. Charles Willette of 14 Oak st., Nashua, N. H., is of weight forward as a question which should engage the attention of public officials in every city in Greater Boston as well as the larger towns. Mrs. Willette says to the Boston Evening American:

Frank A. Goodwin

Please encourage the building of playgrounds in all thickly-congested neighborhoods as it is very important.

We hear so much these days about economy and the saving of dollars that this should be the first object of government.

Economy may be all right in business, where the making of dollars is the principal aim in view, but in GOVERNMENT SERVICE where greater service can be rendered than THE PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS TO LITTLE CHILDREN?

Most of the children in thickly settled districts and Mrs. Willette is right when she calls attention to the necessity for playgrounds as an adjunct to accident prevention.

IT MAY BE ALL RIGHT TO SAVE DOLLARS BUT IT IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT TO SAVE LIVES.

There is a thought contained in a letter from Mrs. Eugene M. Bodell of 427 Court st., North Plymouth, who writes in part:

TWO CAREFUL CHILDREN

"My two children, Mary, eight years old, and six, are quite level-headed, by which I mean considerate and cautious to others. They it is some consolation to have them assure me that if anything happens it will not be their fault.

"They are self-reliant and try to do what is right REGARDLESS OF WHAT OTHERS SAY OR THINK.

"THEY CANNOT BE DARED TO DO CRAZY STUNTS EVEN IF THEY ARE CALLED 'COWARDS' AND 'FRAIDY CATS.'

"A great many accidents happen just that way, by children daring each other to get them first across the street before a car can hit them, etc."

Every mother should give Mrs. Bodwell's statement profound thought, because everybody can visualize such affairs as she describes which happen on our streets every day among groups of children. There is always one boy or girl more daring and more active than the rest, trying to SHOW OFF.

He or she dares the others to do something which they themselves may be able to do, but some in the group, YOUNGER or LESS ACTIVE, may be unable to do, and which even the most nimble and daring may be taking A TERRIBLE RISK in attempting.

Even among little children there is a code which makes them fear the ridicule of others for not accepting a dare. Mothers should bring it home to their children that IT IS BETTER TO BE CALLED A FRAID CAT THAN TO BE KILLED.

A VITAL SUGGESTION

From West Somerville comes a letter from Sumner C. Lang which shows that the shadows were also stirred up by the Mother's Safety Don'ts campaign. Lang makes a suggestion of vital importance, which follows:

"Allow me to suggest that during your safety campaign you take up the subject of where pedestrians should walk, especially on highways where there are no sidewalks.

"I drive about all the time in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island and have taken particular notice of this subject.

"AT LEAST 75 PER CENT OF THE PEOPLE, BOTH YOUNG AND OLD, persist in walking on the RIGHT HAND SIDE NOT ONLY ENDANGERING THEIR LIVES, but not giving an automobile driver a fair break, ESPECIALLY AT NIGHT.

"If the children could only have it drilled into them by the teachers at school and by parents at home ALWAYS TO WALK ON THE LEFT SIDE and when a vehicle approaches TO STEP OFF THE HIGHWAY TO THE LEFT I am certain many lives would be saved."

Lang is certainly right about this. For years he has regularly advocated that pedestrians WALK ON THE LEFT SIDE OF THE ROAD as that they would BE FACING ONCOMING TRAFFIC.

If a pedestrian walks on the right hand side of the road HIS BACK is to vehicles coming toward him on his side he is unable to see that he LEAVES IT ALL to the driver, while if he walked ON THE LEFT and FACED TRAFFIC both he and the driver could see each other and be better able to avoid each other.

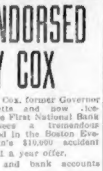
$1 INSURANCE IS ENDORSED BY COX



Channing Cox

Channing H. Cox, former Governor of Massachusetts and now vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, says a tremendous amount of good in the Boston Evening American's $10,000 accident insurance at $1 a year offer.

"Insurance and bank accounts are indicative of thrift and foresight," says the former Governor. "Insurance protects a family from the hazards of life, while a bank account is accumulating money against the day when it is placed within easy reach of all. Any insurance that protects a family is good whether it be the endowment policy or the low-priced accident policy. The premiums quoted for which they are designed, protection for the insured and his or her dependents.

"No one is immune to accidents that mean death or injury. No one can fill the gap made by the going of the family bread winner.

"A good insurance policy can, however, eliminate some of the suffering when accidents do come.

RANGE IS WIDE

"With insurance obtained so reasonably in Massachusetts there is no excuse for anyone being without this necessary protection. The range of selection is wide with costs made to fit every pocketbook.

"All of it is good or it would not have the sanction of the State insurance officials. Everyone should have protection of this kind whether it be a $50,000 policy or the $10,000 accident policy at $1 a year.

"In distributing this $10,000 accident insurance policy at $1 a year to the people of New England, I believe the Boston Evening American is not only making a sacrifice, but performing a great public service."

Former Governor Cox is only one of many Massachusetts men prominent in public and business life, who sees the value of the Boston Evening American's insurance-at-cost offer in connection with its safety campaign. State and city officials and business leaders came out in front with their endorsements of the plan from the very start. Others are voicing their praise of the remarkable insurance offer of a $10,000 accident insurance policy at $1 a year.

Even while serving as Chief Executive of this Commonwealth the increasing number of accidents and the suffering they caused was the subject of much concern on the part of Governor Cox. Since then they have increased tremendously and the situation has become so appalling that the Boston Evening American came face to face with the realization that something must be done.

A SUBSTANTIAL EFFORT

In connection with its safety campaign to reduce the number of accidents, if possible, the Boston Evening American felt upon the insurance proposition as a substantial effort to relieve some of the suffering caused through these accidents. The plan has proved really amazing.

Coupon applications for the Boston Evening American's $10,000 accident insurance policy at $1 a year have been coming in to the office at 5 Winthrop sq. with every mail. They are still coming. With them are many letters thanking the American for putting this necessary protection within the reach of anyone and everybody in New England at a nominal cost.

One dollar a year is all you have to pay for this $10,000 accident insurance policy. Every penny of this amount goes to the insurance company paying out the policies. The slight additional cost, such as clerical work and mailing, is borne by the Boston Evening American.

There is no medical examination, there are no strings attached and there is no red tape. This $10,000 accident insurance policy is for everyone and everybody in New England who desires protection of some sort against accidents. Last year bound to happen sooner or later. No one is accident retaining a hold on our lucky star for ever.

Fill out the coupon printed elsewhere and see that it reaches the office of the Boston Evening American and the $10,000 accident insurance policy is yours.

(See Coupon on Page 8).

$5,000,000 N. Y. GRAFT BARED

New York, June 2 (AP)—A story of graft in the New York street cleaning department to the amount of $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 was on record today in the trial of two suspended officials.

The estimate was made by William J. Loughran, suspended 20-year week garage foreman, witness for the state in the trial of Charles A. McGee and William J. Carey, his superiors, in the Bronx.

Loughran, in the department for 30 years, said that in 1915 he decided to "get some" of the easy money and that in the last 12 years he had actually witnessed the theft of $700,000 by payroll padding.

He testified he had personally collected about $100,000 since 1915 and told of "flashing a roll" of $20,000 around the garage of losing $60,000 in one day's betting at Belmont Park race track and of throwing $8000 in small bills into the air one day "just for the fun of it."

Radio Dialog

Five Strausses and Straus

UNDER the intelligent guidance of an efficient New York concert bureau, the Columbia System has built another unique program. Tomorrow afternoon, from 4 to 5 o'clock, 1four will be devoted entirely to works of Johann, Johann, Jr., Richard, Eduard, and Joseph Strauss and Oscar Straus. This is not a mere fantastic assembly of unrelated and similar names. There is good sound reason for putting all these famous composers together in one radio program. Four of the composers are of a single family, and all stem from a common fount of their uncanny knack in evolving tricky and moving waltz tunes.

Johann the Father

JOHANN STRAUSS, the elder, was known as the father of the Waltz, and he left 158 composition of this character. Of his three sons, his namesake, Johann, Junior, became the celebrated Waltz King, composer of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," "Gesellschafts Rondel," and other celebrated pieces. His brothers, Josef and Eduard, had interesting musical careers, and the latter made appearances in America in the late nineties.

Richard a Classic Composer

RICHARD STRAUSS, composer of "Salome," "Elektra," "Der Rosenkavalier," and other grand operas, is perhaps the greatest figure of the group. His work a few years back was looked upon as ultra-modern and to be appreciated only by the musically instructed. With the passage of time, however, it has become everyday food for music lovers. Perhaps irked by the wide fame of his namesakes, Richard took occasion to prove on more than one occasion that he could write with Johann, Joseph and Eduard in the composition of tunes in the three-cure form. He has a charming waltz in "Rosenkavalier."

Oscar Wrote "My Hero"

OSCAR STRAUS is best known to Americans through his operetta, the "Chocolate Soldier," or better, by its principle number, the once popular "My Hero" waltz, a tune which used to vie with the "Merry Widow" dance for the sentimental closing of college proms.
